THE NATIONAL Broadcasting Company, as a free contribution to public information, will send out the election news on a nationwide hookup, and Mr. Aylesworth, head of the broadcasting company, has invited this writer to be present and occasionally "make a few remarks," telling the microphone what is happening.

The chief remark, which can be made in advance, is this:

Regardless of votes and results, this country will go ahead, gradually pulling itself out of the mud of depression, slowly, perhaps, but surely, overcoming the effects of the great, bloody and stupid war.

Nothing can stop the progress of a country that sincerely wants peace and the happiness and prosperity of all its people, a country that even now has only one complaint, that it has too much of everything.

WITH A BAD, perhaps dangerous winter ahead, those in power should have in mind the fact that no one should go hungry in the United States.

There is excuse for lack of employment, with shrunken payrolls in every factory. There is excuse for everything in this depression, which is part of world-wide troubles. But there is no excuse for hunger.

This country has the food, the government has the money. The food should be put within the reach of every hungry man, woman and child.

And that is a job for the nation to attend to, through competent men, and best of all, probably through officers and men of the Army and Navy. It is not a job for any private agency, Red Cross, Salvation Army, or any benevolent group of dear ladies or worthy busy-bodies.

Lady Astor, recently arrived from England, told reporters:

"America must have the dole."

There is no doubt that dole in England was necessary; and inevitable, with revolution as the alternative.

Here the dole is dreaded, especially by those that would be taxed to pay it. And it may be avoided here, but only by preventing absolute hunger.

Ours, as Lord Northcliffe said, is a very docile people. But its docility ends this side of starvation When an American mob does start, it is the most dangerous mob in the world. Those that do not know it should read "The Mob," by the late Prof. Shaler, of Harvard, and learn what a mob in motion means.

IN A PREFACE to his essays, Montaigne remarks, quoted from memory:

"He who tells me that I know nothing, tells me what I already know."

Any high financier who tells this writer that he knows nothing about finance tells also what is already known.

Nevertheless, will some learned financier kindly answer these questions:

What is the difference, in value, between a government bond, bearing four or five per cent interest, and slips of green paper with the

Hoover Right of Way Guard Shot

RAIL MEN FIND DYNAMITE NEAR NEVADA ROAD

Inspector A. A. Lowe Denies Another Aid Killed.

REPORTS ATTACK

Watchman Says He Fought Off His Assailants.

By The Associated Press.

SPARKS, Nevada, Nov. 8. — A watchman guarding the railroad right of way ahead of President Hoover's special train, bearing him to Palo Alto, Calif., to vote was attacked and injured last night and 22 sticks of dynamite were found near the roadbed, A. A. Lowe, Southern Pacific division inspector, revealed when the train arrived here today.

An unconfirmed report given out by Sheriff F. J. Harris of Elko, Nevada, that another guard had been shot and killed and one of the attackers captured was denied by Lowe.

Watchman Stabbed, Shot.

The affair occurred, Lowe said, two miles west of Palisade, Nevada, at an under-pass, where the Southern Pacific tracks are crossed by the Western Pacific.

The injured watchman, Paul E. Fish, reported to him, Lowe said, that he heard a noise on the trestle above him and that he "went up to investigate."

Fish said he was attacked by a Negro and a white man and stabbed and shot in the hand.

The inspector said four shots were fired by the watchman in fighting away his attackers.

Pilot Train Flagged.

After driving the attackers into the blackness of the sage-covered hills along the right of way, Fish said he searched the tracks and found two sticks of dynamite tied together but without percussion caps or fuse, railroad officials said.

Bleeding profusely, but not wounded seriously, Fish flagged down the pilot train that ran as a safeguard ahead of the President's special. Railroad police and secret service men from the pilot train seached the railroad and vicinity.

Twenty additional sticks of dynamite in a sack were found along the Western Pacific right of way, above and 400 feet from the rails upon which the special train was running.

Special Train Delayed.

Lowe said there was no indication that any attempt had been made to tamper with the rails or to dynamite the roadbed or the President's train, but he was unable to explain the presence of the explosive.

The special train was delayed 40 minutes while railroad police and special agents aboard the pilot train searched the right-of-way and country nearby for trace of the two men described by Fish, Lowe said.

John F. Chester, Associated Press staff correspondent accompanying the President, said none aboard the special know of the attack on the watchman and that secret service agents aboard said they knew nothing of the dynamite being found.

Train Nears California.

Fish, Southern Pacific officials said, was taken to Carlin, Nevada, on a gasoline speeder after the train continued on toward California. His condition was not serious, they said.

Sheriff Harris said he had sent a deputy from Elko to learn details of the attack but had heard nothing from him.

When the train arrived here it was still 20 minutes behind schedule and stopped only long enough to change engines for the run up the Truckee river to cross the Sierra Nevada mountains through Donner pass and into California.

Railroad officials said the President and all his party were asleep when it passed through here.

HOOVER WINS FIRST TOWN TO REPORT VOTE

New Ashford, Mass., Casts 24 for G. O. P., 8 for Roosevelt.

By The Associated Press.

NEW ASHFORD, Mass., Nov. 8 —The little town of New Ashford, nestled deep in the Berkshire hills of western Massachusetts, again today claimed the honor of being the first community in the country to report its presidential vote.

The townsfolk cast 24 ballots for Hoover and 8 for Roosevelt. One presidential ballot was blank.

One new Ashford resident cast his vote for the Socialist candidate for governor, Alfred Baker Lewis. Twenty-three votes were cast for Lieutenant Governor Youngman, Republican gubernatorial candidate, and eight for Governor Joseph B. Ely (D.). Again one of the ballots was blank.

Result Announced at 6:28 a. m.

In 1928, when 31 towns people were eligible to vote, 28 marked up their ballots for Herbert Hoover and 3 for Alfred E. Smith.

This year, the voting list was increased to 34—19 men and 15 women. One of the women was in a North Adams hospital and her ballot, because of legal complications, was not included in the vote reported.

It was the fifth successive presidential year that New Ashford has held the distinction of being the first community in the country to report its presidential vote. The result today was officially announced at 6:28 a. m., two minutes later than the announcement came through four years ago.

The voters of the town had prepared for days to maintain their claim of the distinction they have held since 1916.

Roosevelt Man is Late.

The towns folk had expected to have the vote in earlier than usual this year but they didn't figure on Gregory Makaroff, 50-year-old new Ashfordite.

Gregory, who lives two miles from the 130-year-old school house in which the votes were cast, insisted on walking to the polling place. He scorned all offers of rides and trudged along the country road bearing a Roosevelt banner on which was a painted horseshoe.

It was hardly light this morning when a dozen clanging alarm clocks routed New Ashford's voters from their beds. Dressing was a matter of but a few moments. No one cooked breakfast, since coffee and doughnuts were served to all voters at the polling place.

Hoover Carries Peru, Mass.

President Hoover also carried Peru, Mass., by 37 votes to 23 for Franklin D. Roosevelt as the polls closed at 8:15 a. m. It was the second town in the United States to complete its tabulation, giving William S. Youngman (R.) 39 for governor to 20 for Governor Joseph B. Ely (D.)

In 1928 Peru gave Hoover 34 and former Governor Alfred E. Smith 22 votes.

By The Associated Press.

TUSCOLA, Ill., Nov. 8. — President Hoover received the votes today of the three surviving members of the local G. A. R. post, C. S. Smith, 97; J. R. Cantrell, 90, and J. S. Cambridge.

President Nears His Palo Alto Home to Cast Vote Late Today

Chief Executive Climaxes 11,000-mile Campaign With Plea To Voters in Nevada.

By The Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 8. —Coming into the capital of California, President Hoover told a throng that greeted him at the station today that he has been the subject of "unceasing misrepresentation by the press of William Randolph Hearst."

By JOHN F. CHESTER, Associated Press Staff Writer.

ON BOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL, EN ROUTE TO PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 8—President Hoover neared his home today for the first time in four years, ready to cast his ballot and await the decision of the nation's voters.

The Chief Executive brought his 11,000-mile presidential election campaign to a climax last night with a plea that voters "not be led astray by false gods arayed in the rainbow colors of promises." His words were broadcast nation-wide from the parlor car of his train at a stop in the Nevada valley town of Elko.

After crossing the California state line about daylight the President ran into a series of receptions, including a parade from San Francisco's ferry building to its civic center. From San Francisco, the Hoover party will go to Palo Alto by motor car.

Shows Flash of Temper

Dividing his time yesterday between rear platform speeches and longer addresses and the preparation of brief statements the Chief Executive, apparently tired, showed a flash of temper during his last appearance of the night at Carlin, Nevada.

To a group clustered about the platform of his train, many of them bundled in heavy coats against the chill of mountain air, he explained that he had been speaking many times a day during his trip across the continent and asked to be excused.

"Oh, raspberries," a man shouted

By WALTER T. BROWN, Associated Press Writer.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 8.—For Franklin D. Roosevelt, the end of today meant the presidency or privacy.

The long campaign ended last night with the New York governor's appearance at a rally of his neighbors in Poughkeepsie, county seat of this home county, Dutchess.

The Democratic candidate planned to vote in the little town hall of Hyde Park, afterward motoring to New York City to receive returns at the national headquarters in the Biltmore hotel.

With Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. James Roosevelt, the governor's 78-year old mother, and Elliott, his second son, Mr. Roosevelt intended voting about 2 p. m.

COUNTY HOME RULE IS ASKED

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—The county home rule amendment was placed on file in the secretary of state's office here today.

Petitions, asking that the amendment be placed on the ballot at the election next November, carried 212,237 signatures. The law requires only 120,000 signatures.

The amendment seeks to have the overlapping of county and city governments eliminated by making home rule in the various counties optional. The amendment was filed by Dr. R. C. Atkinson of Columbus.

Record Voting Seen In Nation, Buckeye State and County

Hundreds Trek to Polls in Wellsville, East Palestine, Salem, Lisbon, Leetonia, Columbiana, New Waterford, Rogers, Salineville and Rural Zones During Early Hours—Women in Majority.

Approximately 3,659 votes, representing about 37 per cent of the 9,897 registered electors, had been cast in East Liverpool's 25 precincts in the general election at 11:30 a. m. today.

The noon total was more than 1,400 less than the number of votes cast at the same hour in the 1928 election when 5,198 ballots were reported.

The voting was heaviest in the Second ward where 1,192 votes had been placed in the ballot boxes. The Fourth ward reported a total of 890 while in the Third ward 873 votes had been cast. The First ward total at the 11:30 o'clock tabulation was 704.

The heaviest precinct vote was recorded in Precincts C and E of the First ward each reporting 197 ballots. In Precinct E of the Second ward, voting at the Northside fire station, 194 ballots were cast. Precinct E, Skinnel's grocery, with 174, led in the Third ward, while Precinct B reported the largest figure for the Fourth ward 160 votes. The lightest vote was reported from Precinct G of the Fourth ward where but 85 votes were cast.

Many Women go to Polls

Precinct election officials reported heavy voting by women during the forenoon. Estimates of the precinct officials ranged from about one-third to one-half of the total poll had been cast by women.

Columbiana county election officials, on the face of the noon hour vote, reiterated their estimate of 8,000 and 8,500 in East Liverpool. The opinion was also expressed that the county total would reach 35,000.

The total vote for the national ticket in Columbiana county in 1928, when Herbert Hoover opposed Alfred E. Smith, was 33,866 of which 26,405 were given to Hoover and 7,461 to Smith.

In East Liverpool the total was 9,198 of which 6,918 went to Hoover, 1,958 to Smith, the remaining 322 scattered among four candidates.

NEW RULE FOR GERMANY HINTED

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—In his first speech since the reichstag election Sunday, which resulted in heavy losses for Adolf Hitler, Chancellor von Papen today expressed strong confidence in the future development of the nation's affairs at home and abroad.

"I believe a real national concentration is coming," he said, at a luncheon of the foreign press association. "May the singleness of purpose which animates the German people today on great questions of foreign affairs provide a basis for the conduct of its general policy."

There was in the address a hint that perhaps in the reorganization of the government there may be a new figure at its head.

He reiterated the German claim to equal treatment in the field of armaments.

Here Are Pointers On Election Trend

By The Associated Press.

Here are some pointers on how to tell which way the election is going tonight:

Watch New York. As it goes, the country usually goes. Ordinarily the Democrats need a plurality of 500,000 or more in New York City, whose returns come in first, to carry the state.

Watch Ohio, Indiana, Illinois. Their combined electoral vote not only is regarded as highly important on both sides, but the swing there may easily be an index to what the west will do.

Watch the border states like Maryland and Missouri. Republican majorities there would be a sensational upset of Democratic hopes.

Watch Pennsylvania and Michigan. Consistent Democratic majorities in these Republican states would be indicative of a national Democratic landslide.

Finally, of the result is close, watch California. Her late returns decided the election in 1916, and might do so again.

OHIO CHIEFS AWAIT COUNT

Poll of 2,735,000, All-time Record, Estimated.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8—Chieftains of both major parties radiated the usual confidence as they awaited the verdict of Ohio voters today in local, state and national elections.

Climaxing weeks of oratory by rival campaigners, election day found the electorate stirred to intense interest and indications were that the state would record the largest vote in its history due principally to increased registration in the large urban centers.

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown estimated the total vote at 2,735,000, a new all-time record. Cloudy weather greeted the voters this morning in most parts of the state and the weatherman predicted rain before sundown.

While most of the state balloted in a matter of fact manner, Pike county faced the possibility of having some of its voting booths under the surveillance of national guardsmen.

Ohio in "Doubtful" Column.

Always a pivotal state in national elections, Ohio was considered in the "doubtful" column by the prognosticators to the last, despite one of the spiciest campaigns in Buckeye history. The issues were expounded by candidates of the major parties for president, governor, United States senator and state offices.

In both the national and state campaigns, the issue included the tariff, business conditions, prohibition and economy in government, the latter the chief bone of contention between Governor George White, Democrat, and his 34-year-old Republican opponent for the gubernatorial chair, David S. Ingalls of Cleveland.

The Ohio vote drive shifted into high gear when Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, the Democratic presidential nominee, spoke here in August. President Hoover made several major speeches in the state as did notables of both party national committees.

Norman Thomas, the Socialist presidential candidate, made one of his most important speeches in Ohio when he appeared in Columbus to advocate for the first time his plan for a capital levy.

Prohibition was among the leading issues between United States

FEW OHIOANS AFFECTED BY PENNSYLVANIA TRUCK LAW

COUNTY AUTO CLUB MANAGER EXPLAINS ACT

Harrisburg Bureau Writes to Albert P. Morris.

POLICE CHECK

Extra License Asked 16 Trips in One Month.

Comparatively few motorists will be affected by the recently enacted bill in the Pennsylvania state assembly, calling for Ohio-owned trucks to carry the Quaker state tags if making more than 15 trips a month across the border, it was indicated today by Albert Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club on receipt of a letter from the Harrisburg, Pa., department of justice.

The communication, which was proffered as the personal opinion of an executive in the department since regulations preclude the imparting of official information to persons outside the state government, stated: "The amendment of the vehicle code approved Aug. 15, 1932 affects only non-resident owners of motor vehicles used for transporting persons, or property for hire. It does not apply to the non-resident owners of motor vehicle equipment who uses such vehicle in transporting his own property."

Moving Vans Affected

Concerns operating moving vans and trucks carrying property of other firms or individuals would be governed by this ruling, while bakery and gasoline trucks or vehicles transporting their own merchandise would not be affected, Morris pointed out. However, it must be remembered that gasoline trucks are subject to investigation under another clause seeking to ban "bootleg" gas from crossing the state line, he said.

Pennsylvania state police are expected to start checking Ohio trucks at the Ohio-Pennsylvania state-line on route No. 168 in the near future according to a recent announcement by Chief of Police William Fox of Midland. The state officers have been delegated to check Ohio trucks on each trip made into the neighboring state and after 15 journeys were to instruct the drivers to purchase the Pennsylvania tags.

Truce With New Jersey

Tons of Pennsylvania produce and other perishable goods, which had been threatened with destruction recently when not permitted to cross the eastern border, were again moving on schedule after a temporary truce with New Jersey as adjoining states joined in the motor tag dispute, Philadelphia dispatches reported. More than 200 Keystone trucks were turned back within two hours recently by New Jersey motor vehicle inspectors.

Those carrying perishable goods were allowed to pass if they agreed to apply at once for New Jersey tags. Many refused, and turned back. On the Pennsylvania side, state highway patrolmen were busy checking trucks from New Jersey, but only those which were for hire were halted.

Trucks owners said thousands of dollars worth of vegetables, fruit and milk generally intended for New York, was threatened with destruction.

BEEKEEPERS LIST PROGRAM

Hancock County Unit Begins Observance of National Honey Week Monday.

National Honey week is being observed in Hancock county this week under the auspices of the Hancock County Beekeepers' association, County Agent Walter C. Gumbel of New Cumberland said today. A program for the week was outlined recently at a meeting of the county unit at Pughtown.

Plans were made for radio parties tonight and Wednesday night, when special programs will be presented over radio station KDKA at Pittsburgh by the United States department of agriculture.

SAVINGS SHOW GAIN.

Savings in the Newell schools this week totaled $16.55, an increase of $3.19 over last week. The Wells high school maintained the lead with a total of $9.19. The Fourth street pupils saved $7.36.

SKOOT AWAY YOUR RHEUMATIC PAIN AND NEURALGIA

Don't upset your stomach or depress your heart with strong inward medicines to get rid of rheumatic pains, neuralgia, lumbago, neuritis. Such medicines usually contain aspirin, acetanilide, salicylic acid or some other agent that does more harm than good. Besides it usually takes several days to get relief. Apply a small quantity of this creamy, greaseless liquid on the surface wherever there is pain or soreness. Immediately it sinks in and the pain and soreness leaves within 3 minutes. You wonder where your pains have gone. Skoot is the king of pain killers. The odor is pleasant. Sold by druggists everywhere.

COURT TO OPEN ON WEDNESDAY

Fourteen Cases to be Reviewed at November Session of Court Of Appeals in Lisbon.

LISBON—The November term of the court of appeals will open here Wednesday morning with Judges L. T. Farr, J. W. Roberts and John Pollock presiding. Fourteen cases have been assigned for review by this court, the smallest number for over a year.

One of the cases listed for review is that of Thomas McGarvey, plaintiff in error, against The State of Ohio, defendant in error.

McGarvey was convicted by a jury in common pleas court for manslaughter following the death of Walter Ingledue, who died from a shot fired by McGarvey. When this case was first tried in common pleas court, there was a mistrial, because of error in the proceedings. Judge W. F. Lones sustained a motion for a new trial, and a conviction resulted again. The case now goes before the appellate court on an error proceeding.

Steele, secretary of the Dairymen's Cooperative Sales association, Pittsburgh, will address the members of the Hancock County Dairy association Wednesday night at the grange hall in Pughtown, it was announced today by John P. Rice, president of the local organization. The county group was organized about a month ago by County Agricultural Agent Walter C. Gumbel, to play a county-wide program that will enable dairymen to better understand their problems in marketing, dairy legislation, farm crops and production. Rice will announce the personnel of a legislative and membership committee Wednesday night.

A detailed report of the annual session of the West Virginia Dairymen's association will be given by Gumbel. This report will cover the state dairy platform adopted at the Clarksburg meeting, and a resume of the principal addresses given before the dairymen. The local dairymen will be given an opportunity to discuss important problems confronting the dairy industry in Hancock county.

Steele will discuss problems facing dairy farmers in the local markets as well as the national situation. He is expected to outline the policies of the Dairymen's Cooperative Sales association of which many Hancock producers are members.

CHESTER GIRL HONORED FOR SCHOLARSHIP

Martha Parker Heads Junior High List In October.

With a general average of 96 per cent for the month, Miss Martha Parker won first honors in scholarship in the Chester Junior High school for October, Principal Lew W. Hannen said today. Thirteen other seventh and eighth grade pupils won memberships in the "Ninety Percent" club, an honorary unit, for earning grades of 90 per cent or higher in all subjects during the month.

The list follows:

This is the lowest monthly total of members for the club since it was first organized early last year. Instead of having monthly meetings this year, as the club did originally, all pupils who earn memberships, will be entertained at a party at the close of the year.

Hannen also announced the results of a mock election, held in the Junior High school Monday by Miss Mary Hassell, an instructor. Ballots were prepared by Miss Hassell, containing the names of all the presidential candidates, and were distributed among the pupils. Of the 164 votes cast, 88 were for Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, 73 for the Democratic leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and three for Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate.

Prosaic London Parley, to Which Father Was U. S. Delegate, Resulted in Elizabeth Morrow Meeting Young Welshman Who Became Her Fiance.

Inasmuch as most conferences between the United States and European nations invariably produce nothing but rivers of verbiage, it is refreshing to discover that at least one of these parleys, prosaic as it was, gave birth to the romance that recently climaxed in the formally-announced engagement of Miss Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of the late Senator Dwight Morrow, and Aubrey Niel Morgan, young Welsh business man. Miss Morrow met her fiance in 1930 while visiting the English capital with her father, who was a U. S. delegate to the London Naval conference. Up to now that is the happiest result of the parley.

Miss Morrow's engagement occasioned surprise here, for the romance was unsuspected by all but the most intimate friends of the family. Elizabeth is the oldest of the Morrow children. She is a graduate of Milton academy, Milton, Mass., and of Smith college. She has also studied at the Sarbonne in Paris. When her father was appointed U. S. ambassador to Mexico in 1927, Elizabeth accompanied him and offered her services as a teacher without salary to the Mexican authorities. Her offer was accepted and she taught English to the native children of Mexico City.

The man she is to marry is the son of a wealthy merchant of Cardiff, Wales. He was educated at Cambridge; is an ardent sportsman, being particularly brilliant at cricket. No wedding date has yet been set.

British Marquess to Attempt Conquest of Everest by Air

* * * * * * *

Lord Clydesdale to Lead Expedition That Plans Flight Over Tallest Peak on Globe. Himalayan Giant a Hurricane Center.

With the chief object of promoting British prestige—particularly in India—the Marquess of Douglas and Clydesdale, British aviation enthusiast and member of parliament, with a few chosen companions will take off from northern Bengal, some time in the next few months, in an attempt to fly over the summit of Mount Everett, giant of the Himalayas, which towers 29,141 feet above sea level.

Clydesdale is being supported in his perilous venture by the British air ministry and India office, and the maharajah of Nepal, in whose territory the mountain is situated, has given permission for the flight.

Although the venture sounds easy, it should be understood that the flight from the starting point of the expedition to the peak of Everest is over jagged mountain ranges where a forced landing would mean instant destruction. It is also known that the snow-capped top of the mountain, which is shrouded in frozen clouds for many months of the year, is the seat of tremendous storms, where winds of hurricane force prevail almost at all times.

Two planes will make the attempt. One will photograph the other if, and when, it crosses the summit of Everest. This is to provide authentic proof that the feat has actually been accomplished.

MANY ODDITIES ARE FOUND IN SCIOTO RIVER

Stills, Auto, Whisky Are Immersed at Columbus.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—They started cleaning out the Scioto river where it bends past Ohio's new $6,000,000 state office building down on Front street the other day and what do you think they found?

Several sets of false teeth.
The skeleton of a bear.
Two stills.
Whiskey.
An old stone cannon ball.

Not to mention an automobile, a smashed cash register, parts blown from the office building in the million-dollar blast that claimed ten lives last April, and foundations of a 100-year-old flour mill.

It was "finders keepers" formen decreed; but the police interfered. The rule was all right, the bluecoats said, for the teeth, cannonballs and cash register. But as for the whisky, police said they'd take care of that.

The two or three pay-station telephones found in the slime were identified as stolen in recent filling station burglaries. A woman claimed the automobile, but after a look, decided "finders keepers" could apply there, too, so far as she was concerned.

More than 200 men are busy on the project, widening and scraping as a phase of the capital city's campaign of river-front beautification for the civic center which is just across Broad street from the state office building. It's one of the jobs Columbus has undertaken for unemployment relief.

Other unemployed are given part time work in the city's parks and streets.

SUGAR REFINERS PLAN CAMPAIGN

By The United Press.

FREMONT, O., Nov. 8.—Plans for a "get sweet with Ohio" campaign are being formulated by the sugar beet industry of northern Ohio according to agricultural leaders.

Farmers and mill owners were said to be co-operating in an advertising campaign expected to be carried in all Ohio daily newspapers urging the use of beet sugar.

There are five beet sugar factories in Northwestern Ohio but only the two at Ottawa and Fremont are operating this year.

The advertisng campaign will be modeled after one just completed in Michigan, it was said. That state made a drive to persuade its citizens to utilize Michigan-made sugar rather than Cuban sugar.

Ohio producers expect to stress the value to the state by purchase of Ohio products.

RETAIL TRADE SHOWS PICK-UP IN SEPTEMBER

Best Month in Eight Years Excepting 1928.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—A favorable showing for retail trade in September as compared to August-September seasonal gains in previous years was reported today by the Ohio State university bureau of business research.

The report was prepared in co-operation with the Ohio council of retail merchants.

September showed a 20.2 percent gain over the same month last year. Even after an adjustment was made for the difference in number of business days in the two months, the increase this year was the greatest September gain in eight years, except for 1928.

Total dollar sales in September were 15.2 percent below the same month last year and the total for the January-to-September period of this year was 25.9 percent below the corresponding period of 1931. A decline in the level of prices contributed to this loss, the report explained.

The total sales in September increased 31.4 percent from August. Greatest gain was in the southwest district, improvement there being 35.7 percent. In Ohio's northwest district, the smallest gain, 23.7 percent, was registered.

Drygoods stores showed greater gains than department stores, according to the report. An improvement of 29.7 percent was recorded in September by department stores, as compared with August. The gain in drygoods stores was 52.7 percent.

Cash sales, as a percentage of total sales, declined in September while charge sales declined. These movements, according to the bureau, are in accord with usual seasonal trends.

Overdoing It.

Signs that the general level of intelligence among voters is increasing are to be found, but they are not numerous enough yet to warrant any drastic changes in politicians' ideas on ways and means of winning elections. On the important day when citizens will exercise the great American privilege there are few evidences that the campaign of 1932 will look any better in restrospect than those that have gone before it.

If it were necessary to describe the fundamental mistake responsible for most of its unworthiness in a few words, they probably would be "overdoing it." Politicians, with distressing consistency, weaken their part in the operation of representative democracy by an excess of zeal in bidding for the privilege of speaking and acting for the people. Too many of them fail to observe a distinction between appealing to the people on their own merit and appealing to the people by charges intended to reveal an utter lack of merit in their opponents.

It is an unworthy approach, moreover, that is general among all classes of office seekers. From the lowest to the highest order of government it has become common practice. Sensitive voters have been disgusted by its manifestations in the presidential contest. No county or state has escaped its taint. In every quarter it has been a campaign characterized by the wide employment of personal attack. The result has been to make office holding appear to be more than ever a scramble among individuals, with less than a proper conception of the necessity to maintain at least nominal standards of ethics.

When and if politicians are made to see the desirability of running their campaigns like gentlemen and not personal enemies, light probably will be shed by a spreading cause of humor among the people. The same mistake of excessive zeal in campaigns of the past, seen now in restrospect, is broadly funny, despite its often tragic results. There is no lack of humorous inconsistency in the present campaign, but the humor will be more pointed viewed in a longer perspective. If the time ever comes when the electorate doesn't have to wait for a perspective, politicians will have to revise their tactics.

Inconceivable Statements.

The two leading presidential candidates have had unusually good luck this year finding "astonishing and inconceivable statements" in each other's speeches. They have set a fine example for their respective camps. It seems safe to say that there is nothing that could be said at this late stage of the campaign which would not be seized upon immediately by the opposition and branded, in more or less polite terms, a lie.

The Democratic party has outdone itself in use of this political maneuver, always so valuable in the closing days of a campaign. It has chosen to use what it hoped to be able to use as an issue—prohibition. In place where the rumor will do President Hoover the most harm, it has caused to be circulated suggestions of a doubt about his stand on the question.

There is, of course, not the slightest doubt about where the President stands on the prohibition question for purposes of the campaign. In his acceptance speech he advocated return of liquor control to the states, with federal constitutional protection for states remaining dry. That can be accomplished only through repeal of the 18th amendment.

He did not try to match the Democratic vote-getter, which called for immediate modification of the Volstead act. Democrats knew when they adopted their platform last June and they know now that their party alone can do nothing about any phase of prohibition. Whatever is done will be done by bi-partisan action. It was a deep disappointment to the strategists when the country realized that fact in time to prevent prohibition from being an issue in the campaign.

There remained, however, the possibility of confusing uninformed voters by starting a rumor that President Hoover had changed his mind. As in all such cases, the rumor is more important than the denial, although Mr. Hoover wasted no time publishing one. People believe what they want to believe when politicians become so unscrupulous as to say what they want to say.

The Last Short Session.

By all the laws of probability, representatives to congress elected this year will be prevented from spending as much time in Washington as their predecessors since the founding of the nation. The reason is the 'lame duck" amendment now before the states for ratification.

There is every reason to believe that, having been ratified by 17 states, it will obtain the other 19 ratifications necessary to adoption. If that is done any time before Oct. 15, 1933, the Constitution will have a new amendment effective Oct. 15.

The immediate effect will be to move the opening date of the new congress from December, 1933, to January, 1934. There will be no second regular session of this congress, inasmuch as the congress which convenes in regular session in January, 1935, will be the congress elected in November, 1934.

Current speculation is more concerned with a possible special session of the new congress to be called next spring. Reelection of President Hoover probably would mean that there would be no congressman in Washington from the close of the "lame duck" session to January, 1934, the date provided in the proposed amendment. Election of Governor Roosevelt virtually would assure a special session, under the conditions.

Parties have not always called special sessions after long periods of minority position, however. Grover Cleveland and Benjamin Harrison, stepped into office without doing so, but they were exceptions. When Cleveland opened his second term he called congress to Washington. William McKinley, Woodrow Wilson and Warren G. Harding, likewise, found it expedient to deal directly with the new congress.

The Death of Iman Ibba.

Iman Ibba never had his picture in the newspapers. He posed for no newsreels. No magazine ever lured circulation with a copyrighted story of his career as leaders of the Moros on the island of Sulu.

Forced to fight for the right to live in freedom, as fas as possible from the pigs of Christians and their filthy ways, Chief Ibba gained in death what was almost as precious to him as life itself—the privilege of going to his Moslem heaven with the blood of his enemies on his hands.

To be sure, it was figurative blood. Even had it been real, it would have been from the bodies of some one or two or three members of the Philippine constabulary—scarcely worthy enemies for a tribal chief. But one has to make the most of things as they come, even on the island of Sulu.

The constabulary is claiming, as it often has claimed before, that it has the Moros in a corner this time. They will miss Iman Ibba. They will miss two trusted lieutenants who died with him. It would be well for the constables to make sure they were killed quite dead and buried properly so that their ghosts can't get into circulation. More than one generation of Christian Filipinos has tried to wipe out the Moros or subdue them. They are still making trouble.

Some people seem to have been placed on earth to invent machinery, some to learn all about mass production, some to sell boats, some to make things grow on the lad, and some to fight from morning till night and from childhood to old age. They are the leaven that keeps the loaf working. Iman Ibba, brown, ignorant and cruel by all standards but his own, left his mark on the world. It was a scar, but it represented at least partial fulfillment of his destiny as a devout, well principled and ambitious savage. It seems a shame that a man so eminently successful according to his own standards should have to die at the hands of an ordinary policeman. After all, Chief Ibba didn't have anything to do with the whimsy of fate that caused him and his neighbors to disagree with some of the neighbors of the island of Sulu.

No Gunshot Wounds.

Americans are vitally concerned with the significance of the riots by London's unemployed residents. They wonder what the eventual outcome will be. They seek comparisons with their own unemployed hordes and the things they may be tempted to do unless a revival of industry greater than any that has been made yet renews their hope for jobs.

One point of comparison is too signficant to be overlooked. In reports of clashes between the jobless and the police there is no section devoted to an account of those who have been killed by bullets or who have sustained serious gunshot wounds. To the inevitable violence that attends clashes between desperate men and the police there is not added the horror of bullets.

It is not that there is less relish for fighting in London than there is, say, in Washington. Neither is it because there is any less necessity for London police to rule with a strong hand than there is for the police of any American city to preserve order. It is because in the haphazard determination of methods and traditions that are so important a part of a nation's life, the United States was destined to become a nation whose civil population used guns and Great Britain was destined to fight its civil battles with bricks, clubs and bottles, which are effective but not so fatal.

While the world talks about disarmament, usually with the intention of finding new reasons why it can't be done, it has an example of what disarmament means in the scarceness of guns in England. The London hoodlum does not use a gun because it adds to the seriousness of his crime. The London householder does not fire at intruders because he is not expected to take direct action when molested. London policemen live to a ripe old age because they carry no guns and criminals are too smart to be caught with them. When there is a riot in London, consequently, there are broken heads and sore muscles, but no corpses to be buried amid angry muttering by people willing to die for the right to live.

Other Editorial Opinions

GOOD GOVERNMENT.

In prosperity the people are less apt to criticize government than when times are bad. When work is plentiful the people are contented. When they are unemployed, they look about for the cause of their distress. And government is always the most vulnerable target.

Right now there is much abuse being leveled at national, state, county and city governments. This is because so many persons have time to study their personal problems and to nurse long dormant grievances.

There never was a time when those governments were under closer scrutiny or more on trial. The protest vote is a matter of grave concern with the public officials seeking to retain the favor of the constituency.

Yet the question for every one to decide is whether it is wise to swap horses in a time of economic disturbance.

The responsibility of the voter is tremendous. He must decide what is best for all rather than give expression to his own prejudices. He will be doing his full duty if he will scan the list of candidates carefully, selecting therefrom those most entitled to his confidence, casting out the self-seeking politicians who have no ambition but to sit forever at the public pie counter.

If we pick strong men for office—not those without qualifications who are merely seeking a job at fat pay—then we will have less mistrust of government, and government will function nearer to our conceptions and ideals.—Toledo Times.

TWO OHIO ELECTRICIANS.

By J. H. Galbraith.
For The Associated Press.

When Thomas A. Edison was a two-year-old boy at the home at Milan, Ohio, a boy was born about 50 miles east and a little closer to the shore of Lake Erie who was to prove scarcely less successful in applying electricity to operations for the service of man—Charles E. Brush. He was born on a farm in Euclid township, Cuyahoga county.

Though he has many minor inventions of importance, his fame rests principally upon the development of the electric arc light. The incandescent electric light already had come, but it was chiefly serviceable for the illumination of interiors. Brush sought electric illumination for street use, where a powerful ray was needed, and the arc light was the result of his experiments and investigation.

Common as that form of electric lighting now is, the arc light first was used for street illumination—or rather the first public demonstration of it was made, in the public square at Cleveland, the night of April 21, 1879. He had twelve such lamps arranged about the square, which was flooded with the intense illumination by such rays when the current was turned on, and the man was famous from that moment.

New York Day By Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, Nov 8.—No one seems so definitely a part of the Broadway picture, its ups and downs, as Al Jolson. Consequently, his recent return was like a Congressman's hand-shaking triumphal along Main street, Jolson had been away practically continuously for two years.

Aside from his barn-storming tour, he has been punching the clock on the Hollywood movie lots. Time after time, Broadway has pointed its finger at Jolson, and announced: "Al's through!' After all his professional life has been twice that of the average.

Twenty years ago he was turning them away at the Winter Garden. Few comics last 10 years. Jolson has lost fortune after fortune like George White, "playing the ponies." He was nicked plenty in the Wall street debacle. Yet he always bobs up again merrily, with a better job.

I think Jolson's popularity, aside from his great ability, is in his indifferent lassitude. He has that stocking-soled quality of diverting from his art much of his energy and—with the dazzling nuances of Irish talk—telling anecdotes. With unwinking brightness, he does not believe anything much matters.

Grouch note: Perhaps the best acted and most capably directed picture of the year is "Smilin Through"—starring Norma Shearer and directed by Sidney Franklin. Yet it was weakened by cheap dialogue, voicing such inanities as "You're telling me!"

Society girls picked up enough money to choke a yak this summer by a subtlety they might have ignored in a more opulent era. They acted as "plants" for orchestra leaders. A leader, as though in a twinkle of spontaneity, but actually by pre-arrangement, caught a dancing debbie's eye and motioned her to the "mike." Her response was coy. Through loud-speakers, anyone can croon. So, the leader announces: "I hope Miss Astorbilt will sing for us." She does. Hoitytoity publicity for the place. The girl's dinner chit is complimentary and next day she receives a $20 check, while Henry Sell, who thought up the idea, toddles home in a glow.

Motoring through a Long Island vilayet, a sign: "Barber Shop Bath!" tweaked awarenss of a lost thrill. What an event, to go with Dad to the barber shop Saturday night for a 25-cent ablution in a real tub! A lively jungle of action with its brisk talk, snipping scissors, aroma of bay rum and a banjo in the rear plunking. "Wait for the Wagon." The negro porter drawing your tub, came out salaaming: "All ready, sah!" One flushed with the dignity of a Sheraton chiffrobe. With a bundle of clean clothes under arm, one entered the mysteriously curtained realm aft. What a contrast to the scrofulous old tin tub hanging on the smokehouse wall!

A short ride from Times Square, too, is a slice of rural Holland, even to thatched barns with inset clocks and laundered house fronts. One expects Gretchens in wooden shoes driving geese. The village is Kingston, dating to Revolutionary days. Deaf gardeners trim hedges, ducks single-file gravely, and roosters strut across the road. Old men, with white beards and black straw hats, rock on tumbled porches, and housewives cook simple stews and innocent rice puddings. A gleaming motor, sirening through, seems a sacrilege.

The venerable Cafe Royal on Second Avenue is the only restaurant in town with Parisian-like sidewalk tables. Yet it lacks old world complaisance. Strangers pass with a smile, as though it might be a stunt. Yet, diners have gathered there in seasonable weather for years. Theodore Roosevelt used to go there often.

A kindly simpleton—Verne Porter, I think—sends a crated turkey to fatten for Christmas, as though I had a back yard and everything. For years, a turkey's head rising above the crate suggested someone important. Only today I realized whom. The bird's profile is startlingly remindful of that grand old Roman—Chancey Depew. In a like manner, a trained seal instantly brings to mind Vincent Lopez; and a chipmunk, Clarence Mackay.

I marvel that a column such as this could be turned out today. I'm just back from a dinner where I was parked beside a bosomy lady sheathed in velvet, who, while downing six fierce cocktails in a row, continually warned: "Don't let me drink anything. I get strange!"

How To Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

MANY inquiries have come to me requesting information about "acidosis" and "acidity." It seems desirable to go somewhat into detail regarding those conditions which produce an excess of acid.

To the average man and woman, these two words, acidosis and acidity, mean the same thing. I often hear somebody say, "I suffer from acidosis," when in reality he means acidity. There are very few cases of real acidosis, but many cases of acidity.

First, let us consider acidity. Acidity, or hyperacidity, as it is sometimes called, is a condition in which the stomach secretes an over abundance of hydro chloric acid. This acid in proper quantities is normally found in the juices of the stomach. Its presence is necessary for the proper digestion of food.

A person suffering from acidity has too much hydrochloric acid in his stomach. The sufferer belches has an acid taste in his mouth, and is subject to "bilious attacks."

The first step in the correction of this condition is care in the diet. Usually it can be traced to faulty diet and careless eating habits. Avoid excessive eating and omit those things that distress you. Food should be chewed slowly and thoroughly.

The diet should contain plenty of fresh vegetables and milk. An excess, particularly of meat should not be eaten. Worry and emotional excitement delay the cure.

Acidosis, real acidosis, is usually a fatal condition. It may be traced to some organic disturbance of the body. It occurs in the course of serious and prolonged ailments. It may follow hemorrhage or an operation where there has been a great loss of blood. It is also encountered in severe cases of starvation. It might have attacked Gandhi had he continued his fast.

Acidosis is caused by an excessive accumulation of acids within the body. There must be a definite relationship between the amount of acids and alkaline substances in the body. This proper balance is maintained by the exertion of waste materials through the kidneys, skin, and intestines. When the body is unable to throw off these wastes, including the excess of acids, acidosis results.

Please bear in mind that acidity and acidosis are two distinct and separate ailments. Do not confuse them. As you see, you are not likely to meet acidosis, but by faults of eating you are almost sure to suffer from those symptoms which are commonly called "acidity."

The surest way to be comfortable at all times is to eat temperately. Foods must be selected with great wisdom if you have a tendency to "acid stomach".

Mrs. M. B. E. Q.—What is the cause of a rash appearing on the skin which looks like an insect's sting, with a whitish center, and which produces great itching, and what do you advise for this condition?

A.—This is urticaria or hives. To relieve the itching bathe the affected parts with a solution of hyposulphite of soda. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and restate your question.

A Reader. Q. — What is the cause of puffs under the eyes?

A.—This condition is usually due to constipation, late hours or kidney trouble. For further particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

CONSTRUCTIVE IDEAS

You are given to making fiery, drastic statements.

A great deal of what you say you'd do, is all talk.

In fact you like to hear yourself talk and give very little thought to the what might happen if you were taken seriously.

Don't you want to be thought well balanced?

Can you afford to be considered a "light-weight?"

Why dramatize yourself to no real purpose?

Do you like to hear the question asked, "who said so," when some of your talk is reported and then when your name is mentioned hear the exclamation, "Oh well, that does not mean much."

Not a very dignified position for one who wishes to be thought something in the community.

Of course you have a rather scrappy disposition, but you could curb it.

You like a good fight and so do some others.

But a good fight is not a perfectly irresponsible antagonism.

You need self control.

If you know certain things are wrong and have some constructive ideas as to how to remedy them, get yourself together and get a hearing some way.

Most folk are willing to listen to constructive ideas without malice.

Rhyme a Day

BY ALINE MICHAELIS.

A Young Face

Time has written no lines here,
Life has scrawled no tale;
Only slightest hints appear,
Forecasts vague and pale.

Tokens still of infancy
Lie on lip and brow,
Eyes that gleam with careless glee,
Lightly spoken vow!

Ruthless pride and swift disdain,
Fiery thought and deed;
Youth has still to learn of pain
Any eye can read.

Time has left no message yet
On this eager face;
Not one whisper of life's debt,
Not one trouble's trace.

Not one shadow cast by fear,
Not one hope grown cold;
Time has written no line here,
Life no tale has told.

Only the Brave

Only the brave are happy,
Only the fearless ones,
Daring to grasp at their hearts desire
These are good fortune's sons!

Seekers of all things splendid,
Dauntless in every quest;
Bright is the jewel of joy that glows
Always in the brave man's breast.

Failing, perhaps, and going
Empty of hand at the last,
Yet, in their beings' inmost shrines,
Lords of realms rich and vast.

Only the brave are happy,
Only the brave are wise,
Only the dauntless ones who lift
To stars beyond stars, their eyes!

The Reviewing Stand

By TOM T. JONES.

THERE are times when the minds of certain East Liverpool residents revert to happenings of the gay nineties and those of the first decade of the nineteen hundreds. The thrill of days when bicycles had the call over horse-drawn vehicles and which pioneered the subsequent era of motor traveling continues keen in memories of those given to daring riding upon two wheels and occasionally competing in tests of speed and endurance in races.

At such times, and there was one of these recently in which several men took part in the reminiscences that developed of bicycle riding in and about East Liverpool, the memories of such accomplishments were added to by additional conversations when some of the principals in these long-ago riding were met. They were asked to verify that which occurred upon sundry occasions in which they took part in some road events in which bicycles were the means of motion and transportation.

There was upon this recent occasion by those taking part in it, the general agreement that the late Heber Davidson, a brother of the late Attorney George Dividson, was perhaps the best of all of the racing riders of the bicycles of that particular period. Races in those days were held for the most part in Columbian Park in the East End. These were usually for distances of one mile and occasionally for five miles. There were some long distance riding when riders would cover the distances to East Liverpool from Steubenville, Wellsville and other points. Upon these latter occasions the finish was usually at Market street following negotiation of the final stretch upon Fifth street.

It is recalled that no less personages than Governor and Mrs. William McKinley, when the former was Chief Executive of the state, saw the ending of some of these long distance races from the vantage point of the then residence of Dr. W. A. Hobbs on West Fifth street.

These Columbian Park races drew unique prizes for some of the winners. They included candy, watermelons, socks, neckties, trousers, belts, sweaters, bicycle shoes, bicycle bells and even celluloid collars. It is recalled that these latter came from some of the then leading furnishers of men's apparel in the city.

THERE were many women riders in those days also and they in turn made records that stood out in comparison to those by others of their sex elsewhere. It is recalled that the late William and Homer J. Taylor, sons of Colonel and Mrs. John N. Taylor, were the first young men in East Liverpool to ride a tandem bicycle. Thus they were able to move about together upon the same vehicle to the admiration of those observing them. In time they discarded this unusual machine hereabouts for individual bicycles, it was declared.

Among others given to bicycle riding in those days, it was noted, were Lawrence Cawood, banker and manufacturer; Will Louthan, manufacturer; Howard Blake, manufacturer; Richard Meredith, George Rigby, C. Holtman, Edward Loomis, I. Bentley Pope, Captain Harry Palmer, Harry Logan, George (Ting) Rigby, Lawrence Bloor, Robert Foutts, Edward Adams, John McKenney, Chris Pusey, Harry Dickey, Laughlin Cook, Clark Anderson and many others.

There were many bicyclists in the city who were members of the Ceramic City Cycle club. It was but to be expected that some narrow escapes from serious accidents occurred. There was the time when Thomas Porter turned in dodging a vehicle on Fifth street and struck an iron gutter which precipitated him 20 feet. His machine was wrecked and he was badly bruised but not seriously hurt.

The then residents of lower Avondale street recall the occasion when one day as Bradshaw avenue was being excavated for a sewer that a lad living near the top of the steep Avondale thoroughfare decided to ride his newly-acquired bicycle to the base of it. Some of his companions, happening out from their homes, saw him passing with both legs widely stretched and off the pedals. He had lost control. They placed their hands over their eyes as he dashed madly towards the wide chasm before him about which were brick and boulders of stone.

THEY heard a crash and looked to see him rising from an embankment of dirt across the wide excavation. His machine had struck a stone and had been broken to pieces. He had been vaulted luckily into the soft dirt which doubtless saved him from serious injury. There were some collisions with vehicles which resulted in injuries.

And there was the occasion when a lad was pushing his bicycle down Market street. Just at the Fifth street intersection a horse was being driven eastward by a physician. A collision seemed inevitable. The boy, thinking rapidly, struck the horse a blow with his fist. The animal reared upward. Descending, his hoofs struck the rear wheel, demolishing it. But the momentarily lull, thus afforded, enabled the boy to escape being hit and he was not injured.

It is recalled that there were Old Men's races upon some of the racing occasions at Columbian park in which those entered exhibited flashes of speed. One of the requirements at the start of bicycle races was for each entrant to have a man at his machine to give it a strong forward lunge when the starter fired his pistol. Among those given to this departure was said to be Dr. Clyde Larkins. On several occasions he is said to have given this start to Edward Loomis.

There were many bicycles in use during those days and manufactured by different companies. Many will remember the popular Columbia. The East Liverpool distributor of this bicycle was said to have been the then Eagle Hardware company of which T. V. Milligan was the owner. Some of the machines sold for $125.

I. Bentley Pope, former manager of the K. T. and K. decoration department and later a member of the Pope-Glosser China company of Coshocton, was among the number in East Liverpool who rode a Columbia bicycle, it is recalled by those reminiscing of those past bicycle days.

Captain Harry Palmer, who later removed to California, was in those days the publisher of the East Liverpool News Review, it was pointed out. His plant was located in the building now occupied by the East Liverpool Order of Moose at Washington and Fourth streets.

IT was recently narrated of him by those who recall the occurrence that he devoted a considerable portion of the first page of his paper one day to a description of the feeling experienced when one was forced to be precipitated from the bicycle he was riding. He headed this particular contribution, it is said, "Pride Goes Before A Falll." In his description of "taking a header" he described it as a "precipitous, ungraceful sprawling over the handle bars to mother earth after striking a rut or an obstruction in the road."

All these years there has been preserved by Howard Blake of St. Clair avenue a copy of "Ordinance No. 464," which was printed for general distribution upon card board. It had been passed by the East Liverpool city council on July 23, 1895.

It was an ordinance "to regulate and control the use of bicycles withing the corporate limits of the city of East Liverpool." The first section ordained and enacted that riders of bicycles "shall keep to the right when riding on streets, and the speed shall at no times exceed eight miles per hour when turning corners and going over crossings, except when wheelmen are riding in a road race previously advertised."

It was also made plain that none of the riders should use a bicycle which did not have a bell attached to it. It was ordered that this bell should ever be sounded when approaching street crossings. And it was not permitted for the one to ride upon a sidewalk when the sidewalk abutted a paved street.

In the event that the street was rough or muddy then the sidewalks could be used, the councilmen of that day, declared. But even riders had to realize that the pedestrians had the right of way. It was additionally stipulated that no rider should go at a pace faster than eight miles upon Market street and through the "Diamond," between the southside of Fifth and the northside of Sixth streets.

It was made unlawful for anyone to scatter tacks, nails, glass or other articles by which the rubber tires of bicycles might be punctured or destroyed. Violators of any of the provisions of this ordinance were fined $1, $5 and $10 and costs for first and succeeding violations.

THIS card board was of blue and carried upon its outside advertisements of the Eagle Hardware company of those days; Howard Kerr of Summit Lane, near the diamond and the then People's Store of which Harry E. Porter was the proprietor. "Ring Your Bell" was the initial admonition in this advertisement preliminary to informing the household of the merits of the store.

Howard Kerr announced that he was handling the Eclipse, Falcon and Gendron wheels of that day. It was affirmed by the Hub Bicycle Shop that the world's record at that time had ben made on a Hoffman bicycle at Manhattan Beach. The Cleveland and Imperial wheels were also dispensed at this shop then located at Fifth street and Summit Lane.

"The Evening News Review is the friend of wheelmen," was the announcement in the space allotted to that paper upon the cardboard carrying a copy of this bicycle ordinance. In addition to this paper and the then functioning bicycle firms in East Liverpool it was given out that the ordinance had been printed as the compliments of Frank V. Risinger, another dealer who had joined the others mentioned in doing so.

In advertisements of that day it was said of the Hoffman bicycle which many riders of that day yet recall that it was "the strongest, easiest and the swiftest and in addition was the only bicycle with triangular reinforcement which reached the entire length of the tubing."

In those days electric bells were coming into vogue and one of the firms dealing in bicycles was announcing that it would install one immediately upon suggestion. The streets were held to be more noisy than formerly by reason of the advent of bicycles. The jingling of bells upon them made for a constant sound upon many street crossings and intersections.

Afternoon and evening hours were whiled away by young and middle aged men following their labors in potteries in riding about the streets of the city. There were frequent diversions in which parties were formed for trips to Wellsville. On holidays the entire day was devoted to outings in which far away points might be visited. Longer trips were taken when time afforded.

Gradually some of the younger riders developed grace and speed in manipulating the bicycles used by them. But the greatest handicap was the lack of good roads in many places. This made for a loss of time in long races. Many records would have been broken with present-day roads.

Nothing Venture

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: For the second time Nan dreams her missing husband, Jervis Weare, is lying on wet stones. She braves a fierce storm to look for him in the sinister house of Robert Leonard. In a cave almost beneath her feet lies Jervis, weak from exposure, shattered by the knowledge that Rosamund Carew, to whom he once was engaged, has given him food and at the same time asked a huge ransom from him.

Chapter 48

FERDINAND RETURNS

THE storm howling about her ears, Nan half walked, half was thrown around the house She tried the latch of the kitchen door. It gave.

Standing in the black silence of the room, she was startled by the strident sound of a telephone bell It was not in the kitchen; she groped toward the sound. She was in a passageway.

She looked behind her; the kitchen was in a yellow twilight that rapidly grew brighter. She found a door across the passage from the room on which the bell was ringing, and slipped through.

Nan saw Robert Leonard turn into the room across the passage, carefully carrying a kerosene lamp. The ringing stopped. Through the crack left between the door and the jamb Nan heard an angry ejaculation, an interchange of words. She had no picture of Rosamund, worried by the storm and the consequent high tide, urgently demanding that Leonard take Jervis up into the cellar.

Leonard said: "Don't be a fool," then "Anything else?"

Nan waited for nothing more. She had seen a dim light in the kitchen—it came from an open door in a far corner. She slipped back down the passage, down the brick steps into the cellar. In the middle of the cellar was a barrel upon which stood a lighted candle, and in the corner there was the raised lid of a trap door.

The inner conviction that had brought Nan to this cellar did not desert her now. She took her flashlight from her pocket, and without hesitation plunged through the trap door. She was so weary from her battle with the storm that her hand shook a little. She walked rapidly down the slight slope; the path grew steeper, and she came to feel the nearing presence of the sea.

A sharp turn to the right, and Nan saw about five yards away, Jervis lying as she had seen him lie in her dream.

At the same moment Jervis opened his eyes and, pulling on the bar, sat up. He saw, not Rosamund, but one of those dreams which come out of the darkness and the silence. His wrist was bound to the bar with a handkerchief. He fumbled at the knot, and Nan went down on her knees and put her hands on his and held them fast.

He said, "Nan!" and she said, "Jervis!" and all at once it wasn't a dream any longer.

"Nan!" he said. "Nan!" And Nan put up her face, and he kissed her through the bars with a desperate straining towards life, and love, and happiness, and all those other everyday things which were in jeopardy.

Then the black swell lifted again and washed right over the sill. Nan caught at the padlock with both hands.

"It's no use," said Jervis— "he's taken the key." Then, quickly "How did you come here?"

"I don't know," said Nan. "I came. I saw you in a dream." She added after a moment, "There's a storm."

"It's driving the tide. What is it —thunder, or wind?"

"Both."

"We must get out of here," said Jervis. "You must get out and get help. You're not shut in?"

"No."

"Then you must get hold of the chauffeur. Leonard's armed. Is he in the house?"

"Yes—telephoning. He came up out of the passage and left the door open."

"You must go."

She leaned towards him, and they kissed again.

He said, "I'll be all right—I can hold on to the bars." And then without a word she ran from him round the bend.

As she came to the steps which led to the straight paved end of the passage, she caught her breath in a gasp of relief. The trap was still open, and a faint candle-light showed.

And then all at once there was something wrong. The light was brighter—it was too bright for candlelight. Nan stood stock still and stared at the open trap. It was about a dozen yards away. A broad yellow beam was coming through it, and suddenly there was a man's foot in a heavy boot on the topmost step. Robert Leonard was coming down.

Nan turned and ran wildly down the steps and along the black passage with her hands stretched out in front of her as if to ward the darkness from her face. She turned the bend, lighted her torch, and ran back to Jervis.

"He's coming!" she cried, and fearfully flashed the torch about the space. There was a cleft, wide enough for her to stand in. Leonard came up.

"You're spoiling my rest, you know," Leonard said to Jervis. "Rosamund just rang up—"

"Good of her," remarked Jervis.

"Her wishes are my law. I've come to give you your last chance —for a half million dollars." He dangled the keys to the grill behind which Jervis lay. "With the tide like this it's cheap."

Nan slipped, blundered horrified out of her narrow shelter. Leonard started, and the lamp fell from his hand. There was a sudden flare of burning oil, and the two of them were running back up the passage. Nan ran for her life—for Jervis' life. If she only could throw herself beneath the edge of the trap before he flung it down!

It was hopeless. The door slammed, the darkness reminded Nan that she still had her torch. Shoulders sagging, she made her way back to Jervis.

Jervis said, "He caught you?"

"Yes—I fell."

"He hasn't hurt you?"

"No. He's shut me in."

He held her close and kissed her. Nothing mattered. The water rose, and would have lifted them if they had not held to the bars. Strange and cold, to have bars between them.

"Why did you marry me, Nan?" said Jervis.

"Didn't you know?"

"No. I thought. . . . Why did you?"

Nan trembled. His arm was cold and stiff, but it held her close

"I loved you so much."

"Then? You loved me then?"

"Yes. And then when you came in that day and said that Rosamund had thrown you over I couldn't bear it."

"Nan—Nan! I'm not worth it. I've been a beast to you. But I do love you now."

The cold wash of the water shook them.

"Nan—" said Jervis. "You musn't stay here."

Nan pressed closer.

Nan—darling—you musn't. Go back up the passage. I may have to swim for it."

A sudden movement of the whole flood thrust Jervis hard against the bars and almost took Nan out of his arms. It dragged back again, and he was put to it to keep his feet.

"I can't go," said Nan. "I'm not afraid if you hold me."

That surging lift of the tide came again. They clung together, and felt the bars between them strain with the force of the water. And then with the backward pull something hard whipped about Nan's left ankle and clung there. She pulled herself free of Jervis and stooped down into the water.

And then she felt a chain. Her fingers closed on it, and she came up laughing and crying, and thrust it into the beam of the torch for Jervis to see. Eighteen inches of bright chain, and a small bright key.

"He dropped it with the lamp," said Jervis. He turned the key in the lock. The surge of water flung them forward with the gate; they splashed precariously to shallow water, to the dry passage. Nan had lost her torch, but they did not miss it. Their minds were illumined by something brighter than electricity.

It seemed a long time until they reached the trap. Jervis couldn't lift it.

"Have to wait for someone," said he, too happy to care.

"Will anybody come?" asked Nan.

EAST PALESTINE MAY TROUBLE CERAMICS

Golicic Hope Of Visitors

Hard-hitting Fullback Candidate for All-county Honors.

By ROBERT ELLIOTT,
Sports Editor, The Review.

LED by their candidate for all-county honors, Golicic, a hard-hitting fullback, the East Palestine high school gridiron squad will invade Patterson field Friday night for their annual tussle with Leland Schachern's Potters. Faculty Manager John Decker announced this morning that the game would be played Friday night, but in the event of bad weather, would be postponed until Saturday afternoon.

The Brown and White squad, composed entirely of veterans, has had a rather disappointing season, but Perry Van Hyning's boys hope to make up for some lost ground in the fracas here.

Win Three Out of Nine.

The Brown and White team has played nine games so far this season, losing four, winning three and tying two. Palestine started off the season by tying Kent Roosevelt, 6-6. Then came a 38-0 defeat at the hands of Alliance, followed by 26-0 and 22-0 triumphs over Sebring and Toronto, respectively.

The Palestine boys then hit four tough week-ends in a row, losing to Wellsville and Lisbon by the same score, 20-0, tying Leetonia, 14-14, and dropping a 20-0 verdict to Campbell Memorial. Last Saturday Van Hyning's cohorts finally started clicking and swamped a weak Columbiana aggregation, 60 to 6. The Brown and White has counted 128 points to the opposition's 130.

This record doesn't compare very favorably with the Potters' fine achievement of six victories in seven starts, but nevertheless Coach Schachern is anticipating a fairly hard struggle.

There will be eight lettermen in the starting lineup, which will face the Potters. The veterans are Wile and McCready, the ends; Captain Sutherin and Sensenbaugher, the guards; Huiton and Griffiths, the tackles; Golicic, fullback; and Parker, an exceptionally fine tackle. Quarterback Flynn, Tackle Brittain and Center Jacques are not lettermen, but saw plenty of service with the 1931 Palestine club.

Despite the fact that a Potter triumph is anticipated Friday night, Schachern doesn't intend to take any chances with the Brown and White eleven. Last year Palestine gave the Potters a bad scare and their veteran combine is capable of doing the same thing this year if the Ceramics take the game too lightly.

Garner McCoy, who was out of the McKinley and Martins Ferry games, will likely be ready Friday night, but it's doubtful whether "Shack" will use him or not, with the tough Holy Name and Wellsville battles coming in the next two weeks.

PAPER CARRIES WASHINGTON AD

By The United Press.

MEMPHIS—Yellowed with age and folded away with care, a newspaper possessed by Idel Miller contains an advertisement inserted by Geoge Washington, himself.

It is an Aug. 20, 1773, edition of the Maryland Journal and Baltimore Advertiser, which boasts it contains "the freshest advices, both foreign and domestic."

George Washington's ad dealt with 20,000 acres of land he had just acquired "on the Ohio and Great Kanawha." He proposed to divide it.

He offered to lease it rent free for a "reasonable number of years upon certain provisions." One was that "within the space of two years from next October, three acres for every 50 contained in each lot, and proportionately for a lesser quantity, shall be cleared, fenced and tilled."

RENTNER STOPPED AS OHIO WINS FIRST GAME

Steelers Prep For Big Game

Ambridge's Powerful Eleven Visits Midland.

Victorious in only one game out of seven starts, Rusty Lomond's Midland high gridders today were preparing for the invasion of the powerful Ambridge machine, at present leading the Class "A" W. P. I. A. L. championship rating. The Ambridge club is undefeated and holds a 7-0 victory over East Liverpool, scored in a practice tilt before the season opened.

Although he is conceded no chance of winning by most of the fans, Lomond may spring one of the surprises he has become noted for in Beaver county grid circles. A triumph over Moe Rubenstein's strong eleven would make up for the five defeats suffered so far this season by the Crucibles. It will be a dangerous team the Bridgers will face Saturday.

The Ambridge backfield, including Quarterback Percelli and Fullback Michelosen, has run wild over most of the opposition this season and it's Lomond's hard task to build a defense, capable of halting the touchdown marches of this pair.

Ambridge also boasts an outstanding tackle in Captain Eddie Gutowski, one of the finest linesmen in Western Pennsylvania grid circles.

Mike Karas, as usual, will carry the bulk of the Midland attack and do a good share of the defensive work.

The Midland-Ambridge tussle is the only game Saturday in the district. East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salem, East Palestine, Columbiana and Leetonia are all booked to play on Armistice Day.

Geltz Drives Mt. Union Hard For Battle With Wooster "11"

Larry Gligor, Injured Early in Season, Will Play Only Home Game of Season Against Scots.

ALLIANCE, Ohio, Nov. 8. — Mount Union's football team is in the best condition it has been this season, coach Geltz reported at practice last night as he began intensive preparation for the biggest home game of the season, and incidentally the last. Wooster comes to Mount Union in Dads Day feature, Saturday.

Larry Gligor, veteran around whom mentors were building their backfield when he suffered a broken collar bone Sept. 28, will be in the line-up playing his last and only game this season at home. Besides Gligor, Yaggi, and Allen will be at starting positions with 4 good men to chose from for the other half. Gligor has been out over 6 weeks. His injury is well healed and he is protected by a steel brace which should make him entirely safe. This is his last season

Recuperated from a short rest last week and an easy game last Saturday the Mount line is in good shape to plunge into the three remaintaning heavy games, Dieterich Cordes who was only in a short time Saturday after 3 weeks on crutches is back on his feet to meet Wooster. No one was injured Saturday.

Aside from a slow first quarter in which Mount showed evidence of over-confidence, Geltz's new line combination showed more strength and appears to be a better combination. Cope and Nicholas at tackle stood out while Jones, newly shifted to end, kept the opposition continually guessing.

Allen contributed the best punting this year to out-boot Hiram by an average of about 20 yards. Cope made his 4th block on opponents punting this season, and almost recovered for touchdown instead of safety. Allen accomplished what he came within a step or two of doing several times this year, when he circled end for 80 yards leaving no doubt about his speed once he gets loose.

Two more games have been lined up for the Midland high school reserve football team. On Thursday at 4 p. m. the Steelers will entertain Aliquippa. The Midland second stringers will travel to Aliquippa on Monday, Nov. 14.

Georgetown Seeks Young Coaches in Victory Quest

BY TED VOSBURGH,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

WASHINGTON — A dramatic "new deal" in mid-season has given Georgetown university one of the youngest football coaching staffs in the country.

There may be a few younger head coaches than Jack Hagerty, Georgetown's captain of 1925, who has been called from professional football ranks to take the place resigned by Tommy Mills, but his two assistants—Maurice Dubofsky and Charles Brickman—are each only 23. Hagerty at 29 looks like a college senior himself.

Working under a contract that covers the rest of this season and all of next, Hagerty has undertaken to restore the Hilltoppers to the high place they occupied during his playing days when he was rated one of the best football "totters" the institution ever had.

He has a job on his hands, for the material which used to flow there when Lou Little was head coach has been running a bit thin.

Another big handicap results from the fact that Georgetown for two and a half seasons has been schooled in the Rockne system of play taught by Mills, a disciple of the old master of Notre Dame.

As Hagerty learned his football in a different school, all this has gone out the window and a complete new system is being installed. The brand of play that Hagerty has begun calls for a line that charges low and hard with a backfield operating from a single wing back formation.

If his instructions is successful, Hagerty's line will look much like the forward walls turned out by Little at Georgetown a few years ago. His backfield will recall the offensive evolution of the New York Giant pro eleven.

Both Hagerty and Dubofsky came to their new posts from berths with the Giants. In the hard school of the professional game, both men learned a lot they believe will prove useful in coaching a college team.

JACK HAGERTY

Jack Hagerty, Georgetown's new mentor, is only 29 and looks like a college senior. Each of his two assistants can boast of but 23 years.

FIND HORSESHOE IN TREE TRUNK

By The United Press.

MEMPHIS — A hand-wrought horseshoe, embedded in the heart of an oak tree, may prove that Hernando de Soto saw the Mississippi for the first time on the Chickasaw Bluffs, at Memphis.

At least, John B. Jarrett, of Holly Springs, Miss., believes that that is what a horseshoe he found in a tree on his plantation proves.

The oak tree in which the shoe was found has more than 400 rings, Jarrett says, indicating the age of the tree at about 400 years.

According to Jarrett, De Soto's soldiers are the only ones who could have left behind such a memento, as the Indians had neither horses nor iron from which to make horseshoes.

If De Soto's men didn't leave it, then who else could have?" Jarrett asks.

De Soto is supposed to have seen the Mississippi river in 1541, and the contention is that the Spanish explorer caught his first glimpse of the mighty river at Natchez, Miss.

CITY WORKER LOSES TITLE

By The United Press.

OAKDALE, Cal.—Clarence Wood, city clerk, health officer, secretary of the chamber of commerce, secretary of the Farm Loan Bank, clerk of the city council and city treasurer, had lost a job today.

He lost a position with the highest sounding title of all—"assistant collaborating epidemiologist in the public health service for duty in the State of California."

But while it was a nifty title, it was the poorest paid position of all. Wood, who holds more positions than any other man in Stanislaus county, received only $1 annually for the public health duty for the state.

The position was abolished by the U. S. Surgeon General.

Panthers Likely To Get Trip

Must Get by Nebraska, Tech and Stanford Elevens.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—There are other possible nominees but right now it appears that one of three Eastern football teams — Pittsburgh, Colgate or Brown—will receive the bid to play the far Western representative, probably Southern California, in the annual Rose Bowl game at Pasadena New Year's day.

Of these, Pitt seems most likely to win the nomination, provided the Panthers, conquerors of Army, Notre Dame and Pennsylvania, can get by Nebraska, Carnegie Tech and Stanford without defeat.

Pitt has had no luck in two previous appearances in the New Year's day classic, bowing to Stanford by one point in 1928 and to Southern California, 47-14, in 1930. Perhaps the Panther believes his luck will turn if he can get the bid this year.

Colgate and Brown should reduce the field of possible winners of the award in their battle at Providence Thanksgiving day, assuming that both come through their games against Syracuse and Columbia, respectively, this week. The winner of the Thanksgiving day game might well be invited west in the event that Pitt comes a cropper.

GYPSY WOMEN TRICK VICTIM

By The United Press.

DETROIT—Four ladies of a wandering gypsy tribe visited Jack Kidder, proprietor of a gasoline filling station.

They promised excitement if Kidder wrapped up six five-dollar bills in a handkerchief. Kidder followed their instructions. When he opened the handkerchief — after the gypsies were gone—the bills had vanished.

Kidder called police, who arrested the gypsies. Unperturbed the ladies pointed to Kidder's shirt front. Kidder opened his shirt. The six five-dollar bills fell out.

"You wouldn't kid a Kidder?" he asked the ladies as police released them. "We would and we could," one gypsy replied.

JOBLESS MAN HUNTS GOLD

By The United Press.

SAN FRANCISCO — Because there's still gold in the Siskiyou Hills, Frank J. Wielm, participant in California's 1932 gold rush, was a member in good standing of the Khaki Shirts today.

Devoid of cash, Wielm sent a stopped rifle cartridge partly filled with gold dust, to Clarence King, commander of the San Francisco division of the organization that grew from the Bonus Expeditionary Force.

Unable to find employment, Wielm said he had invaded the old gold country and was making a "fair living."

CHINESE QUIT JAP SCHOOLS

By The United Press.

PEIPING, China—While once Japan sheltered more Chinese seeking education than any other country, the Sino-Japanese controversy over Manchuria has curtailed sharply the number of Chinese willing to study in Japanese colleges, it is announced by the Sino-Japanese Federation.

Latest statistics show that now there are only 1,400 Chinese students in Japan. This number is expected to be reduced sharply within the next few months. Prior to the Japanese military occupation of Mukden, on Sept. 18, 1931, there were 3,096 Chinese students at work in Japan.

Within the past year more than 100 Chinese women, who were studying in Japan, have returned to China.

Wildcat Gridders Planning To "Shoot The Works" Saturday

Hanley Feels His Club Has Everything to Gain, Nothing to Lose, in Battle Against Notre Dame Eleven.

By WILLIAM WEEKES,
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 8—Northwestern today started rallying its football strength for one big win or bust venture against Notre Dame at South Bend Saturday.

Beaten three times and tied once in its own league, Northwestern finds itself in an everything to gain and nothing to lose spot, and Coach Dick Hanley has decided to shoot the works.

Notre Dame, back in winning stride after losing to Pitt in the biggest upset in years, figures the Wildcats feel that a triumph will atone for other disappointments, and are preparing accordingly.

Michigan got right down to business yesterday, Coach Harry Kipke seeing a need of plenty of work on the Wolverine running game, before Chicago and Minnesota are encountered in the last two games of the season. Purdue got an afternoon off and will go to no extra trouble for Iowa.

The customary Monday rest was missing in most camps. Wisconsin scrimmaged yesterday, while Minnesota drilled on defense. Ohio State got a brisk offensive drill as the start of preparation for Pennsylvania, and Indiana drilled hard for Illinois. The Illini got off with a signal drill.

Iowa's regulars were excused and the Chicago varsity watched a demonstration of Michigan formations.

HUGE VEIN OF COAL LOCATED

By The United Press.

HAZELTON, Pa.—Mining engineers interested at the sight of a 60-foot vein of anthracite were astounded to hear of a vein just twice that size.

The Lehigh Navigation Coal company displayed specimens of the 60-foot vein known as the Mammoth vein at an engineers' meeting here.

W. S. Ayers, Hazleton, a veteran mining engineer, then recalled a vein 120 feet thick at the Milnesville strippings many years ago.

Ayres said that the vein had folded back during the carboniferous era and the folding had produced the phenomenal size.

government's promise to pay as many dollars?

IN THE BIG war the government's Liberty gold bond for one thousand dollars could be bought for about eight hundred dollars.

And, at the same time, the government's little green one dollar bill did not drop at all. In fact you could buy a $1,000 gold bond for about 800 of those one dollar bills, in spite of the fact that, plainly written on the green slip it says "one silver dollar, payable to the bearer on demand."

Eight hundred little greenbacks calling for eight hundred silver dollars could buy a $1,000 gold bond. Why?

The approaching congress may vote to pay the soldiers' bonus of two and a quarter billions now, when veterans need the money, instead of paying, as the bonus must eventually be paid, several years later.

If the government issued gold bonds for two and a quarter billions, paying, say, four per cent, that will cost the taxpayers just one hundred million dollars a year in interest. And there is little doubt that the bonds would again fall below par.

If the government prints currency and gives it to the veterans, taxpayers will save the $100,000,000 a year and the currency will not fall below par.

Would the color of the paper make any difference to the government's credit? Would it have sound credit if it ran more deeply into debt to the tune of two and a quarter billions, signing its name to pieces of yellow paper, bearing interest and promising to pay gold? And would its credit be forever ruined if it increased its indebtedness, its promises to pay, by signing pieces of green paper, bearing no interest?

Would not saving $100,000,000 a year interest help government credit? It would surely help taxpayers.

SANITARY CASE IS DISMISSED

Municipal Court Rules in Favor Of Mrs. Fannie Hoffrichter Of East End.

The case against Mrs. Fannie Hoffrichter of First avenue, East End, filed by Santary Inspector D. J. McKeever, Sept. 20, charging laxity in keeping Boyce street property in proper sanitary condition, was dismissed today by Municipal Judge Harry Brokaw.

According to health board officials, Mrs. Hoffrichter ordered the city water department to disconnect water lines leading into the property occupied by tenants, causing a nuisance.

In his opinion, Judge Brokaw said: "It is urged on behalf of the city that the cutting off of the water supply makes an insanitary condition and is likely to spread disease. The court does not believe that the defendant is subject to the provisions of this section of the sanitary code and the case will be dismissed.

"The court does not believe that this particular section was ever made for the purpose for which the complaining witnesses seek to use it. If the board of health of the city wish to prevent the turning off of water upon circumstances such as this, the court believes that it should directly forbid the action by appropriate legislation. Then the particular question could be squarely raised and the point properly tested, but the point cannot be properly tested in the action before the court."

Lorain Amends Political Meet Ordinance to Deny Jury Trial

Council Acts After Six College Students and Two Socialist Officials Face Charges.

By The Associated Press.

LORAIN, O., Nov. 8.—A municipal ordinance under which six college students and two Socialist party officials were arrested for holding political meetings on city property here, was amended last night to deny possible future violators the privilege of trial by jury.

To accomplish this, the city council eliminated from the ordinance a provision for jail sentences, leaving a $200 fine as the maximum penalty.

The six students, under graduates at Oberlin college, were arrested Sunday when they attempted to hold a Socialist meeting in a city park. The charges were dropped yesterday, however, when the students threatened to fight the case and demanded trial by jury. Prosecutor Walter Harlan said the city could not afford the expense of a jury.

Immediately after the students left the police court, Sidney Yellen of Cleveland, Ohio secretary of the Socialist party, and Amicus Yost, a Socialist party organizer from Chicago, joined with them in an attempt to hold a "protest" rally across the street.

Yost and Yellen were arrested at once but were released without bond. No date was set for their hearing. The students were not rearrested.

Mayor Joseph B. Conley, who refused to grant the students a requested permit for the first meeting, explained the ban was the result of a clash several months ago between police and Communists. He added he had to "treat all parties alike" and would not oppose an indoor meeting.

Police End Meeting.

The students, holding the mayor's ruling was unconstitutional discrimination against parties or groups which could not afford to rent halls, attempted to conduct their meeting in defiance of the ordinance.

More than 200 persons, including 40 students, were present when the police ended the first meeting.

Chamberlain is president of the Norman Thomas for President club at Oberlin and Abernathy is a graduate student in philosophy.

A telegram congratulating the students on their stand was sent to Abernathy yesterday from the Thomas and Maurer committee in New York.

The students claimed in their protest against arrest that the ordinance forbidding political meetings on city property denied the constitutional provisions for free speech and peaceful assembly.

STORM LASHES TWO SHIPS

Another Mysterious Call for Help Checked.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. — Coast guard headquarters was advised today that the cutter Pontchartrain had taken in tow the steamship Tachira 400 miles east of Savannah and was towing it toward Hampton Roads, Va.

By The Associated Press.

Two ships were wallowing helplessly in the troughs of high seas behind an erratic Caribbean hurricane today, and another mysterious call for help was under investigation.

The disabled craft were the Blue Funnel Line freighter Phemius and the Quaker Line freighter San Simeon, and they lay within 250 miles of each other off Cape Gracias A Dios, Nicaragua.

The mystery message was picked up by the steamship Sixaola presumably in the Caribbean, and the call letters were G-B-W-Y. The Sixaola reported the S O S to the navy department at Washington where a check was in progress.

A salvage tug from Kingston, Jamaica, found the Phemius yesterday after the craft had drifted two days in the wake of the blow. Her funnel was gone and her holds were taking water. She was about 150 miles east of Cape Gracias A Dios.

The San Simeon had a jammed rudder and her steering gear was broken 400 miles off Cape Gracias A Dios, and further to the south. The undated fruit steamer Tela was standing by the San Simeon. The United States navy airplane tender Swan and the destroyer Overton left Colon, Panama, to help the Phemius.

It was not determined exactly how many men were aboard the two vessels, but such freighters usually carry between 25 and 40 men in their crews.

Meanwhile the storm was spreading out today and gathering intensity, although weather forecasters were unable to chart its exact direction. The national observatory at Havana gave the storm's latest position as probably 160 miles east southeast of Swan island or 450 miles due south of Havana, Cuba.

It was impossible to say whether the storm would menace Yucatan, Mexico, or Cuba, as it moved in a generally northerly course, because weather stations have never been able to put their finger on the center of disturbance since it began a week ago in the Virgin islands.

AUTO CRASHES THROUGH FENCE

Charles Fuller, 18, of 1225 Clover street, Wellsville, is recovering today from abdominal injuries received when he was thrown against the steering wheel of his automobile after striking a fence near his home. He was backing the car into the garage when the accident occurred. Dr. E. D. Miskall attended him at the City hospital where he is employed as a janitor.

REDEMPTORISTS STAGE PAGEANT

Three Bishops, 50 Priests, 1,000 Parishioners Take Part in Catholic Affair at Lima.

By The Associated Press.

LIMA, O., Nov. 8.—Unusually colorful religious pageantry again was displayed here today in the bicentennial celebration of the founding of the Redemptorist order.

Three bishops, 50 priests, and more than 1,000 Catholic parishioners of northwestern Ohio participated in the services.

Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland, prominent in yesterday's celebration, described the work of the order, founded in Italy 200 years ago.

Other bishops taking part in the service were Karl J. Alter of Toledo and John Noll of Fort Wayne, Ind.

"HAD CONSTIPATION SINCE BIRTH OF MY FIRST CHILD"

Then Mrs. King Discovered ALL-BRAN

We quote from her voluntary letter:

"I have suffered from terrible constipation since the birth of my first child—9 years ago! I have tried everything and nothing had any lasting results. Very reluctantly I tried your 'ALL-BRAN' with no faith in it at all. Much to my surprise I have not had to take any medicine since starting to use ALL-BRAN, 4 months ago."—Mrs. Doris Eyre King, 16 Abbey Road, Oxford, England.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things which overcome constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

—Certainly this is more natural than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Two tablespoonfuls are usually sufficient. If not relief this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for blood. At all grocers. In the red-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

OHIO CHIEFS AWAIT COUNT

Poll of 2,375,000, All-time Record, Estimated.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democrat, and Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, the Republican senatorial candidate.

Final Appeals by Candidates.

Final appeals to the voters were issued by the candidates last night and rival party headquarters issued predictions of victory. Meanwhile, S. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, advised "great care" in making selections, declaring the league's purpose in the campaign had been to "set before the voters the attitudes and records of candidates simply and solely on the wet and dry issue."

The voters also faced the task of choosing local officials and casting their ballots on various proposals, including bond issues and plans for municipal power plants.

Three ballots will be presented to each voter, the main partisan candidate ballot, the non-partisan judicial ballot, and the constitutional convention and local bond issue ballot. Twenty-two district congressmen, two congressmen-at-large and a new legislature will be elected.

There are six party tickets—Democratic, Republican, Socialist, Communist, Socialist-Labor and Prohibition.

from the crowd, as the President started to re-enter his car.

"If the man who made that remark will step forward, I will tend to him," the President called, turning back again toward his audience

He was given a cheer as he waited for a moment before again going back into the car.

Broadcasts Vote Eve Appeal

Stopping his train at Elko, Nevada, earlier last night the President participated in a Republican election-eve radio program that emanated as well from New York, Chicago, Shenandoah, Iowa, and Washington.

"I have a deep feeling," he said, at Elko, "that the choice you have now is more than a choice for another four years. There is a great difference in philosophy of government between the parties, which may affect events over a generation. A mistaken choice hazards the welfare of our children and our children's children.

"I have been fighting that the wrong course may not be adopted; not by appeal to destructive emotion but by truth and logic. I have tried to dissolve the mirage of promises by the reality of facts."

The President declared himself "a believer in party government," saying it was only through such organization that the whole people could give expression upon major issues."

Due at Palo Alto at 6:10

Early in his address, which consumed only about ten minutes of radio time (less than the allotted time) Mr. Hoover asserted that the measures adopted by his administration to alleviate the national economic strain were "now demonstrating their strength and effectiveness."

"We have again resumed the road toward prosperity," he said.

Before the presidential train rolled into Elko, the Chief Executive had opportunity to listen to his predecessor, Calvin Coolidge, urge the continuation of a Republican administration.

"All the teachings of common sense," Coolidge said, "require us to re-elect the President."

The only speech today by the President was set for his arrival in Palo Alto at 3:10 p. m., (6:10 in East Liverpool), after which an honor guard of war veterans will escort him to a reception on the Stanford campus. Thence the President and Mrs. Hoover go direct to their home on San Juan hill to be greeted by members of their family, including Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., and their three children, and Allan Hoover, the President's second son.

TUSK IS FOUND IN GRAVEL PIT

By The United Press.

BELOIT, Wis.—The ivory tusk of a mammoth, or mastodon, estimated to be 50,000 years old, has been excavated from a gravel pit in South Beloit.

The tusk, 18 inches long and the size of a baseball bat, probably once adorned the head of a prehistoric mammoth, according to Prof. Paul Nesbit, of the Beloit College department of anthropology.

"The tusk probably was laid down in the gravel deposit in which it was found by running water during the Pleistocene or ice age." Professor Nesbit said. "The remaining bones may have been decomposed nearby, or may not have been carried into the same deposit by the water."

Nesbit explained that the prehistoric mammoth sometimes attained a height of 14 feet, with tusks occasionally 10 feet in length. The animals, he said, were of two or more types, the hairy coated or less hairless type which roamed North America.

POLICE COST $1.92 YEARLY

By The United Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Police protection in the 42 third-class cities of Pennsylvania costs each resident an average of $1.92 annually, according to the State Department of Internal Affairs.

The departmental report showed $2,965,703 appropriated for police protection by the cities for 1932.

Harrisburg, the state capital, has a per capita cost of $2.70, the largest in the state. The smallest cost is reported by Sunbury, where the per capita charges for police are only 67 cents.

While Harrisburg costs are highest, its police protection is also the best, for there is one attache of the police department for every 717 persons. Reading has one official for each 905; Erie one for 920, and Allentown, one for each 949.

Erie, the largest city in the third-class group, had the largest police appropriation, $279,439. Corry's appropriation of $6,920 was the smallest.

DOG NURSES YOUNG PIGS

By The United Press.

WASCO, Cal.—Pigs is pigs, as has been pointed out before, and likewise, pups is pups—but not to Lady, Pat Wood's bull terrier.

Lady had four pups on which she lavished loving care. When they were four weeks old, three of them were given away.

There were, also on the ranch, two young pigs, whose mother died when they were squealing infants. Lawrence Wood, son of the rancher, was raising the young porkers on a bottle.

One day he noticed that the piglets were not hungry at mealtime. He investigated and discovered that Lady had adopted the pigs and was trying to make good dogs of them.

alization calls for the best in any man. I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration."

And then he added:

"If that be your verdict, my friends of America and my next door neighbors of Dutchess county, and that be the confident purpose behind your verdict, I shall in the humility that suits such a great confidence seek to meet this great expectation of yours. With your help and your patience and your generous good will, we can mend the torn fabric of our common life."

Before the Poughkeepsie rally in the Knights of Columbus hall, Mr. Roosevelt drove to Beacon to speak in the public square where 22 years ago he made his first campaign speech. From there he went to Newburgh, on to Kingston, and then home.

At the four places he visited in the Hudson valley, thousands gathered to cheer the nominee. Several old timers crowded close to Mr. Roosevelt's car to say timidly that they recalled his first campaign and to wish him luck in the presidential race.

Mrs. Roosevelt, after attending the Poughkeepsie rally with her husband, drove to New York to conduct her classes at a school for girls this morning. She will motor back to Hyde Park to vote.

The governor's mother sat near him at the rally last night.

Traveled 17,000 Miles.

Mr. Roosevelt pushed his campaign into 37 states and traveled more than 17,000 miles by land, sea and air.

He is 50 years old and won his first political campaign when he was 28. The prize was a seat in the state senate. He advanced to the presidential nomination after several steps: An assistant secretaryship of the navy during the World war; the vice presidential candidacy in 1920; and two terms as governor of New York.

RICHEST WOMAN IN U. S. DIES

Widow of E. H. Harriman, Railroad Financier, Succumbs in New York Hospital.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Mrs. Mary Averell Harriman, financier and philanthropist, who became the richest woman in the United States in 1909, is dead.

The widow of E. H. Harriman, railroad financier and "little giant of Wall Street," succumbed last night in a New York hospital after an emergency operation. She was 81 years old.

When Harriman died in 1909 he left a 100-word will bequeathing his vast estate to his widow "absolutely and forever." Mrs. Harriman amazed Wall Street by the sagacity with which she administered it.

Harriman had had a fondness for 10 per cent investments coupled with a risk, but she preferred 5 per cent and safety. She withdrew from speculative enterprises and eventually created the Harriman National bank.

OHIO CHIEFS AWAIT COUNT

Poll of 2,375,000, All-time Record, Estimated.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democrat, and Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, the Republican senatorial candidate.

Final Appeals by Candidates.

Final appeals to the voters were issued by the candidates last night and rival party headquarters issued predictions of victory. Meanwhile, S. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, advised "great care" in making selections, declaring the league's purpose in the campaign had been to "set before the voters the attitudes and records of candidates simply and solely on the wet and dry issue."

The voters also faced the task of choosing local officials and casting their ballots on various proposals, including bond issues and plans for municipal power plants.

Three ballots will be presented to each voter, the main partisan candidate ballot, the non-partisan judicial ballot, and the constitutional convention and local bond issue ballot. Twenty-two district congressmen, two congressmen-at-large and a new legislature will be elected.

There are six party tickets—Democratic, Republican, Socialist, Communist, Socialist-Labor and Prohibition.

Presidential Train Speeds to Palo Alto.

from the crowd, as the President started to re-enter his car.

"If the man who made that remark wil step forward, I will tend to him," the President called, turning back again toward his audience

He was given a cheer as he waited for a moment before again going back into the car.

Broadcasts Vote Eve Appeal

Stopping his train at Elko, Nevada, earlier last night the President participated in a Republican election-eve radio program that emanated as well from New York, Chicago, Shenandoah, Iowa, and Washington.

"I have a deep feeling," he said, at Elko, "that the choice you have now is more than a choice for another four years. There is a great difference in philosophy of government between the parties, which may affect events over a generation. A mistaken choice hazards the welfare of our children and our children's children.

"I have been fighting that the wrong course may not be adopted; not by appeal to destructive emotion but by truth and logic. I have tried to dissolve the mirage of promises by the reality of facts."

The President declared himself "a believer in party government," saying it was only through such organization that the whole people could give expression upon major issues.'

Due at Palo Alto at 6:10

Early in his address, which consumed only about ten minutes of radio time (less than the allotted time) Mr. Hoover asserted that the measures adopted by his administration to alleviate the national economic strain were "now demonstrating their strength and effectiveness."

"We have again resumed the road toward prosperity," he said.

Before the presidential train rolled into Elko, the Chief Executive had opportunity to listen to his predecessor, Calvin Coolidge, urge the continuation of a Republican administration.

"All the teachings of common sense," Coolidge said, "require us to re-elect the President."

The only speech today by the President was set for his arrival in Palo Alto at 3:10 p. m., (6:10 in East Liverpool), after which an honor guard of war veterans will escort him to a reception on the Stanford campus. Thence the President and Mrs. Hoover go direct to their home on San Juan hill to be greeted by members of their family, including Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., and their three children, and Allan Hoover, the President's second son.

TUSK IS FOUND IN GRAVEL PIT

By The United Press.

BELOIT, Wis.—The ivory tusk of a mammoth, or mastodon, estimated to be 50,000 years old, has been excavated from a gravel pit in South Beloit.

The tusk, 18 inches long and the size of a baseball bat, probably once adorned the head of a prehistoric mammoth, according to Prof. Paul Nesbit, of the Beloit College department of anthropology.

"The tusk probably was laid down in the gravel deposit in which it was found by running water during the Pleistocene or ice age." Professor Nesbit said. "The remaining bones may have been decomposed nearby, or may not have been carried into the same deposit by the water."

Nesbit explained that the prehistoric mammoth sometimes attained a height of 14 feet, with tusks occasionally 10 feet in length. The animals, he said, were of two or more types, the hairy coated or less hairless type which roamed North America.

By The United Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Police protection in the 42 third-class cities of Pennsylvania costs each resident an average of $1.92 annually, according to the State Department of Internal Affairs.

The departmental report showed $2,965,703 appropriated for police protection by the cities for 1932.

Harrisburg, the state capital, has a per capita cost of $2.70, the largest in the state. The smallest cost is reported by Sunbury, where the per capita charges for police are only 67 cents.

While Harrisburg costs are highest, its police protection is also the best, for there is one attache of the police department for every 717 persons. Reading has one official for each 905; Erie one for 920, and Allentown, one for each 949.

Erie, the largest city in the third-class group, had the largest police appropriation, $279,439. Corry's appropriation of $6,920 was the smallest.

DOG NURSES YOUNG PIGS

By The United Press.

WASCO, Cal.—Pigs is pigs, as has been pointed out before, and likewise, pups is pups—but not to Lady, Pat Wood's bull terrier.

Lady had four pups on which she lavished loving care. When they were four weeks old, three of them were given away.

There were, also on the ranch, two young pigs, whose mother died when they were squealing infants. Lawrence Wood, son of the rancher, was raising the young porkers on a bottle.

One day he noticed that the pigs lets were not hungry at mealtime He investigated and discovered that Lady had adopted the pigs and was trying to make good dogs of them.

alization calls for the best in any man. I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration."

And then he added:

"If that be your verdict, my friends of America and my next door neighbors of Dutchess county, and that be the confident purpose behind your verdict, I shall in the humility that suits such a great confidence seek to meet this great expectation of yours. With your help and your patience and your generous good will, we can mend the torn fabric of our common life."

Before the Poughkeepsie rally in the Knights of Columbus hall, Mr. Roosevelt drove to Beacon to speak in the public square where 22 years ago he made his first campaign speech. From there he went to Newburgh, on to Kingston, and then home.

At the four places he visited in the Hudson valley, thousands gathered to cheer the nominee. Several old timers crowded close to Mr. Roosevelt's car to say timidly that they recalled his first campaign and to wish him luck in the presidential race.

Mrs. Roosevelt, after attending the Poughkeepsie rally with her husband, drove to New York to conduct her classes at a school for girls this morning. She will motor back to Hyde Park to vote.

The governor's mother sat near him at the rally last night.

Traveled 17,000 Miles.

Mr. Roosevelt pushed his campaign into 37 states and traveled more than 17,000 miles by land, sea and air.

He is 50 years old and won his first political campaign when he was 28. The prize was a seat in the state senate. He advanced to the presidential nomination after several steps: An assistant secretaryship of the navy during the World war; the vice presidential candidacy in 1920; and two terms as governor of New York.

RICHEST WOMAN IN U. S. DIES

Widow of E. H. Harriman, Railroad Financier, Succumbs in New York Hospital.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Mrs. Mary Averell Harriman, financier and philanthropist, who became the richest woman in the United States in 1909, is dead.

The widow of E. H. Harriman, railroad financier and "little giant of Wall Street," succumbed last night in a New York hospital after an emergency operation. She was 81 years old.

When Harriman died in 1909 he left a 100-word will bequeathing his vast estate to his widow "absolutely and forever." Mrs. Harriman amazed Wall Street by the sagacity with which she administered it.

Harriman had had a fondness for 10 per cent investments coupled with a risk, but she preferred 5 per cent and safety. She withdrew from speculative enterprises and eventually created the Harriman National bank.

RECORD VOTE SEEN AT NOON

Hundreds Trek to Polls in County Precincts.

East Palestine Poll Heavy

A total of 2,192 votes had been cast at noon in the 13 precincts of Salem, or 106 less than in the 1928 election.

With women casting approximately 60 per cent of the ballots, more than 700 voters had turned out at noon in East Palestine. This is more than double the usual poll, election officers said, and is likely a new high record will be set when the polls close tonight.

Voting continued brisk during the forenoon in Lisbon and Center township, a total of 818 ballots out of a possible 2,000 having been cast in the village while 243 were reported from township precincts.

More than 300 voters had visited the polls in Salineville at noon. Approximately 50 per cent were women.

The high mark of 780 votes at the 1928 presidential election was likely to be surpassed at Columbiana where about 400 electors had trekked to the polls at noon. The voting was slow until 10 a. m., but for the next two hours the three precincts were kept busy.

Leetonia saw a flood of ballots, with 320 in the boxes at 11 a. m. The record village vote is 900.

Sixty-five had voted at Rogers and more than 50 at New Waterford at noon.

Heavy Vote in Ohio.

An exceptionally heavy vote was being rolled up in Ohio today, The Associated Press said.

Reports from scattered rural areas and large cities indicated the heaviest vote in the history of the state was being poured into the ballot boxes.

Favored by warm, cloudy weather, Ohio's electorate got out early and from virtually every section, including the rural districts, heavy voting was reported during the first two hours.

In Toledo, where charges of illegal registration caused Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown to make an election eve investigation of the registration, 2,084 challenges were ready for service.

The secretary of state Monday advised state Democratic Chairman Brunner, that he was unable to find any evidence, either direct or indirect, of intentional falsification of registration in the eighth ward of Toledo, but said he did find that many persons who had registered in previous elections, had moved away from the precinct in which they were on the poll books. State election inspectors were on the job today to check and challenge those not entitled to vote.

Pike County is Quiet.

Pike county, where the secretary of state asked Governor George White to send troops, was quiet two hours after the election. Although the governor did not send soldiers to oversee the election, Adjutant General Henderson said he was prepared to send guardsmen into the county on a moment's notice.

The basis for the troop request was the fact that at least one person has been killed in past elections in one township or Pike county.

Cleveland, Ohio's largest metropolis, reported heavy voting during the first two hours, and on the basis of the early balloting, election officials forecast a vote of about 400,000 in the county.

Twenty per cent of the vote in Lucas county, Toledo, large industrial center, had been cast by 8:30, two hours after the polls were opened.

Dayton, home of former Governor James M. Cox, presidential nominee in 1920, reported an exceptionally heavy vote during the first two hours of balloting in cloudy cool weather.

Ideal weather, with unusually heavy voting was reported from Akron (Summit county). Election board officials did not believe the vote would equal that of 1928 when 114,000 ballots were dropped in the box, because of population losses since that time, however, they forecast a probable vote of 100,000.

Light Poll in Youngstown.

Youngstown, the largest steel center in the state, the early voting was light, but election officials predicted a possible last minute rush which might deny many voters the privilege of casting ballots. The weather was cloudy.

Columbus, (Franklin county) was favored by a bright warm day, and during the early hours a heavy vote was cast. The statehouse was closed part of the day to give state workers a chance to cast their votes.

A survey of Clark county showed a heavy vote in both city and rural districts. One third of the total city registration had cast their ballots by 8 a. m. Election board members believed a record vote of 41,000 would be cast.

Steubenville, where unofficial charges of illegal registration were cold-shouldered by the Jefferson county grand jury, reported a heavy vote. Seventy-four challenges have been prepared for service, 40 in Steubenville. The remainder were for rural districts. About ten per cent of the vote had been cast before the polls had been open two hours.

Every road in the state was reported in good condition for the farmers to drive to their voting booths.

47,000,000 TO VOTE.

Midnight Tonight May Disclose Winner in Presidential Race.

By The Associated Press.

Sunrise today saw the vital issues of the presidential campaign of 1932 submitted to the sovereign will of the nation's registered voters—47,000,000 strong—and among them the two men most deeply concerned personally were casting their own votes, the one at Palo Alto, California, and the other at Hyde Park, New York.

Midnight tonight, in the Eastern time zone, may disclose whether Herbert Clark Hoover, Republican, or Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Democrat, is to be president of the United States after March 4.

Only an abnormally close decision could materially delay unofficial announcement of the outcome.

As voters swarm to the polling places there rests with them also decisions as to which of the major parties is to dominate the new, or 73rd congress; on the control of 34 states where governors were being elected, and on the next national step to be taken in the twelve-year problem of prohibition.

In addition, to the voters of New Jersey and Colorado has been entrusted by circumstances, final judgment as to which party shall control the United States senate in the session that convenes next month.

Record Registration Reported

The country-wide registration for this election has exceeded by four and a half million the 1928 figure, itself a new high.

Whether that increase in eligibles forecast an abnormally high vote can only be told after the full popular results in every state are available, which will not be for several days at least.

If the nation is following precedent, 15 per cent of the qualified voters are not exercising that privilege today and the aggregate of the ballots cast will be around 40,000,000.

Weather conditions over the country may affect the rural vote.

A majority of the 531 electoral votes—266—will decide the presidential contest, not a popular plurality.

Polls opened at dawn in some eastern precincts and were to close as late as 8 p. m. Pacific, or 11 p. m. East Liverpool time.

President Hoover, on the hustings to the very last, brought his intensive campaign for re-election to a close Monday night with a speech from Elko, Nevada.

Speaking to his neighbors and the nation as well, Governor Roosevelt wound up an even more lengthy drive for election at Poughkeepsie, New York.

2,279 Candidates Listed

The names of 2,279 candidates facing state-wide votes, including presidential and vice presidential nominees but excluding electors, jam the general election voting lists. They include about 15 for president and vice president, 122 for the senate, 1,142 for the house, 136 for governor and 864 for subordinate state jobs.

Senators are being elected in 33 states. Thirty-four seats in the new senate are being filled, two of them in Georgia.

With the present political classifications of the senate standing at 47 Republicans, 47 Democrats, one Farmer-Labor and one vacancy, the election of Democratic senators in New Jersey and for the short term in Colorado would place that party in control of the "lame duck" session beginning in December.

All but three of the 435 members of the house are being chosen today. Maine's three representatives were elected September 12 and in that surprising election turnover two out of the three were Democrats. In the present congress that state has four Republicans. The state has lost one seat under the reapportionment act.

More than 100 women are seeking popular decisions for various offices, from United States senator to the smaller state places. Women leaders looked for the largest vote from their sex since suffrage was granted them.

Wets and Drys Counted

In classification by various wet and dry organizations are correct, there are 641 major party candidates for congress who favor repeal or submission of prohibition, 94 for continuance of national prohibition, and 136 whose views are not known.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, about the same time said "enough drys have been nominated to make possible the election of a congress that will defeat repeal or modification."

Prohibition also figures in 11 states where repeal or enforcement acts or constitutional dry clauses have been proposed on the ballots.

Eight states—Arizona, California, Colorado, Louisiana, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oregon, and Washington—put before the people proposals to repeal enforcement acts.

Michigan is voting on a measure to take the "bone dry" clause out of its constitution, to provide local option and to authorize the legislature to set up a liquor control commission.

Wyoming voters face the question, "shall the 18th amendment be repealed," while those in Connecticut mark a proposal to petition the national legislature to propose prohibition repeal to the states.

Millons in Bond Issues.

In addition to voting on repeal to enforcement acts, Louisiana balloters decide whether congress shall be petitioned to call a Constitutional convention to propose repeal or modification of the 18th amendment, and the people of California mark a proposal to authorize the legislature to regulate control of liquor in event the enforcement act is repealed.

Six states have no enforcement acts — Maryland, Massachusetts, Montana, Nevada, New York and Wisconsin.

Approximately $150,000,000 in bond issues also are being balloted upon today in eight states—Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Illinois, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, and Rhode Island. They cover unemployment relief, highway and bridge construction and debt funding.

Seven states put up to the voters proposals for enactment or for authorization to enact income taxes—Alabama, Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota and Washington.

One—Arkansas—proposed a general sales tax of one per cent on all merchandise except farm products in the hands of the original producer.

Twenty-eight minor party designations appear on the ballots, the largest on record.

Election Weather Forecast.

Bright sunshine over most of the west, but clouds, rain and a touch of cold for the east is the weatherman's vote today.

A forecast by the weather bureau in Washington calls for rain in the Ohio valley, Tennessee, the lower lake region, the Appalachian region and spotted over the Atlantic seaboard.

West of the Mississippi, the outlook is for fair weather, except for rain in Louisiana, coastal Texas, Northern California and parts of Washington and Oregon.

Clouds with occasional rains or local showers are the order in most of the southern states.

Cooler weather is on tap for virtually all the Atlantic coast area and the states stretching back to the Mississipi and from the Gulf to Great Lakes.

A bit of snow is expected in some areas, such as upper Michigan, Northern Wisconsin and some of Minnesota.

BEER, PARTY CONTROL STAKE

Congressional Election Will Determine Two Major Questions.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The way the voters ballot for congressional candidates today will determine not only the complexion of the next congress but may have a vital bearing on two major questions of the immediate December session—beer and party control of the senate.

The struggle among Democrats and Republicans for mastery in the next house and senate has been so hotly contested that election day finds hardly any seats conceded, but even before this group comes in, the attitude shown by the voters towards prohibition may stir the outgoing congress to action on modification of the Volstead act. By virture of immediate election to two senate seats, the Democrats stand a chance of taking a majority right away.

Many present members of both branches, elected in the past on prohibition platforms, have indicated, say their party leaders, that if the electorate registered strong anti-prohibition sentiment they would feel free to vote for immediate modification of the Volstead act.

HOOVER'S HOME IN CALIFORNIA

In his final plea to voters to return him to the White House, President Hoover campaigned along the way from Washington to his home in Palo Alto, Cal., where he arrived today in time to cast his ballot. It was here that he received the news of his overwhelming victory in 1928.

PILOTS SEEK SPEED RECORD

By The Associated Press.

CRANWELL, England, Nov. 8.—In an effort to break the Boardman-Polando non-stop aviation distance record of 5,039.5 miles, two Royal Air force pilots today planned to leave the flying field here at dawn tomorrow for British Southwest Africa, providing there is no westerly wind.

The fliers are Squadron Leader O. R. Gayford and Flight Lieutenant D. L. G. Bett and they will use the same long-distance monoplane in which they made the first non-stop fight from England to Egypt in 1931.

Failing in the right wind tomorrow, the fliers will be ready each morning until November 15, after which the flight would be postponed until the next full moon.

OPEN HUNTING SEASON FAILS

By The United Press.

MADISON, Wis.—Although Wisconsin hunters killed more than 250,000 grouse during an open season of less than a week, their "bag" may not have been large enough to accomplish the purpose of the season, conservation department officials said today.

The department sought to avert in-breeding, which is held responsible for large scale freezing and starvation every sixth year. If Wisconsin hunters scattered grouse coveys throughout the state, effects of in-breeding would be averted, and the birds would continue to increase.

MUTTON IS GOOD DIET FOR FISH

By The United Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Sheep liver is fed fish being reared at state hatcheries in Pennsylvania, according to the State Fish commission.

Experiments by the commission showed "organs of assimilation taken from animals" formed the best diet for rearing fish, as they contained the necessary elements for proper growth.

Futher experimentation developed sheep flesh as the best of the means because of "the succulent vegetable matter upon which the animal feeds."

HOTEL SAFE LOOTED.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 8. — Cash and valuable papers worth $1,0.9 were stolen from the safe of the Kemper Lane apartment hotel early today. Officials said the safe combination had been operated and a strong box taken.

COUNTIES OPEN PRISON FARMS

By The United Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Two Pennsylvania counties have established "prison farms" and six others are considering such establishments, the State Department of Welfare reported.

The farms now opening are in Berks and Delaware counties. The former is located on a 740-acre plot and the latter on one of 440 acres. Each prison houses 300.

Welfare officials advocate method of establishing a satisfactory program of rehabilitation in fitting convicted men and returned to society."

Those counties listed as considering such farms included Washington, Green, Somerset, Erie, Montgomery, and Chester.

RIDES BICYCLE 10,000 MILES

By The United Press.

PORTLAND, Ore.—George M. Sanford, 78, of Oakland, Cal., stopped here recently after traveling 10,000 miles on a bicycle since 1929.

He said he enjoyed cycling through nearly every state, but that he thought he would return to Oakland and settle down now.

BUSINESS MEN ABSENT-MINDED

CHICAGO — The Chicago business man on his way to work leaves more parcels on Chicago's elevated lines than does his wife going to the Loop to shop.

But in rainy weather, trainmen pick up 40 umbrellas left by women to every one left by a man. Bad memory is more prevalent on the west side than the north or south, judging from the figures showing 650 packages a month finding their way to the Lost and Found office from west side trains to 510 from north side cars and 300 from those of the south side.

Only two out of every three packages are ever called for, the records show.

TRACES MONEY PAID WORKMAN

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Trailing a $10 bill is interesting and, according to Clyde James, Grand Rapids business man, also profitable.

James paid a workman $10 recently. He decided to trail the bill, when the workman said his grocer would be glad to get it.

From the grocer the bill went to a butcher, who added several dollars and paid his rent. The landlord added several additional dollars and paid James $20 due on a roofing account.

"So," James pointed out, "I doubled my money by releasing a $10 bill."

THE HUNTER HUNTED!

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous artist, R. Atkinson Fox . . . inspired by the battle between an enraged bull buffalo and the savage Indian hunters whose lances roused the beast to furious charge. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

That package of mild Luckies
